SAIGON (UPI) — Communist troops attacked the length of South Vietnam Friday pouring heavy shellfire into the ancient capital of Hue in the north and overrunning one of Saigon's defense bastions in the south.

U.S. officials said the drive was bigger than the 1968 Tet offensive.

Saigon officials ordered the city's self-defense militia into a "state of alarm and readiness" and panic-buying of vegetables and rice swept the capital city.

The biggest exodus in the history of the Vietnam war continued and field reports said Communist forces moved in behind the fleeing troops and civilians to secure their new territory.

Government forces have given up more than a third of South Vietnam during the past 10 days, with troops and civilians fleeing 10 provinces. Another four provinces are considered under serious military threat.

PHNOM PENH (UPI) — Communist rockets hit two American supply planes at Pochentong Airport early today, damaging them so badly they could not take off. The U.S. airlift of food, fuel and ammunition was suspended immediately, a spokesman said.

ta reported from Hanoi that Viet Cong troops were welcomed "emotionally" in Ban Me Thuot, a provincial capital in the Central Highlands.

The report said many officials of the Saigon government had stayed on and other residents, including Chinese merchants and other foreigners, were returning to live under the Communists.

At Hue, South Vietnam's third largest city, Communist gunners poured heavy shellfire into the city and its new defense lines, hurrying the southbound flight of more than 250,000 refugees.

The shelling closed Hue's Phu Bai airport to all traffic, and taxis and boats jammed southbound Highway 1 and the Perfume River. Initial reports said the shelling caused few casualties and did not hit the massive refugee column.

Refugees and retreating soldiers said taxi drivers were charging $135 for the 50-mile trip from Hue to Da Nang. Because of huge traffic jams at the Hai Van pass, midway on the route, the trip by car now takes 22 hours.

Boat owners charged $75 per six-hour trip.

Some South Vietnamese troops maintained defense lines for the retreat from Hue, 400 miles north of Saigon, but their commanders had given permission to flee Hue to any soldier who asked.

Refugees arriving in the coastal city of Tuy Hoa said that Communists shelled a convoy to keep it from

$33.1 billion tax cut approved by Senate

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Friday night adopted a $33.1 billion tax cut bill designed to help boost the economy out of the recession.

The vote was 60 to 29. The cut would be the largest in U.S. history.

The bill, which reduces 1974-75 individual taxes by $25.7 billion and business taxes by $7.4 billion, now goes to conference with the House, which earlier approved a tax reduction of $19.9 billion.

THE final compromise version of the tax cut, expected to range between the House and Senate figures, could go to President Ford by Wednesday. He has proposed a $16.6 billion cut.

The bill is aimed at pulling the U.S. economy out of the recession by giving taxpayers more money to spend and business greater incentive to increase production and reduce unemployment.

The measure would provide almost immediate rebates on 1974 taxes of between $120 and $240 to all taxpayers and reduce the tax burden of most Americans in 1975 and 1976.

Before the final vote, the Senate approved special relief for the hard-core unemployed, financially ailing businesses and working parents who have to hire babysitters.

By a 52-40 vote, it tabled — and thus killed — an amendment by Sen. Dale Bumpers, D-Ark., to eliminate the proposed rebates on 1974 taxes. Bumpers contended that the $10 billion earmarked for rebates could be better used to create jobs for the unemployed.

WHILE most segments of American society would receive a net tax cut, the Senate bill has bad news for the giant international oil companies.

Included in the bill is a $3.8 billion hike in corporate taxes — and the great majority of that would fall on the oil companies.

The Senate voted to repeal the oil depletion allowance for the major companies but retain it under certain conditions for the 10,000 independent producers that drill 80 per cent of U.S. oil and gas wells.

In addition, the measure ends the lucrative foreign tax credit for the major oil companies, although retaining it for other U.S. firms operating abroad. Also repealed would be the tax break allowing all companies operating in foreign countries to delay taxation on foreign income until it is reinvested in the United States.

Before reaching the final vote, the Senate rejected a move by Sen. Mike Gravel, D-Alaska, to remove federal price con-

'Gap' still holds up agreement on Sinai

JERUSALEM (AP) — Israel decided early today to postpone further consideration of a Sinai agreement with Egypt, and Henry A. Kissinger said "a gap remains."

The secretary of state added that "both sides would benefit from a day of thinking."

Kissinger said he would remain here but "he is in touch" with Egyptian President Anwar Sadat through U.S. Embassy channels and meet with Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin and his top aides later today.

Kissinger commented after a 2½-hour meeting with the Israeli negotiating team.

Israel and Egypt have been reported near agreement on four important elements of a Sinai pact, but the key issue — how far Israel should pull back on the peninsula — still was elusive.

Israeli Defense Minister Shimon Peres denied that the talks were deadlocked. "Let's be a little patient," he told newsmen outside Rabin's office.

Kissinger said he planned to continue his shuttle between Israel and Egypt "as long as there is a possibility of bridging a gap between the two sides." His current mediation effort was in its 15th day.

The Israeli Cabinet was called into a special pre-Sabbath session to consider Egypt's latest position and met for five hours before the negotiating team met with Kissinger.

Rumors swept Jerusalem that the Israeli military had been mobilized. Asked about the reports, Peres said, "there is no call-up," but added that he did not mean to rule out "the call-up of a soldier or two."

Kissinger and Peres said they had gone into "great detail" and Peres said "basic problems still must be bridged." Neither was explicit.

U.S. officials cautioned that the negotiations could still deadlock, particularly over the withdrawal line.

"We're not at the brink of an agreement," a high American official told newsmen on the flight from Egypt.

IRS file on stars reported

NEW YORK (AP) — ABC News said Friday that actor Tony Randall and "Friends of the FBI" are among 11,000 persons and groups listed in files of a special federal tax unit set up during the Richard M. Nixon administration to gather intelligence on "extremists" and "radicals."

ABC said 8,000 individuals and 3,000 groups are named in files of the IRS' Special Service Staff, established in 1969 and abolished in mid-1973.

However, it didn't say if the eight persons and four groups ABC identified as listed in the unit's files had been categorized as "extremists" or "radicals" or if they'd been given any description.

ABC, which did not identify the nature of the "Friends of the FBI," also said the secret IRS files contained these names and organizations:

—Sherman Adams, a Dwight D. Eisenhower administration aide.

—The National Organization of Women, the American Conservative Union and the United Jewish Appeal.

—Mrs. Burt Lancaster, basketball star Kareem Abdul Jabbar, and performers Julie Andrews, Connie Stevens and Elizabeth Taylor.

The eighth person ABC named as in the files was a "Jose Jimenez," but the program didn't say if this was an actual person or actor Bill Dana's well-known comedy character.

Ex-CIA agent, postal official tell of 20-year mail surveillance. Story on Page A-10.

The IRS frequently has denied that it ever bowed to pressure during the Nixon administration to create a secret unit to gather intelligence on persons and groups the White House disliked.

The ABC program said information in the Special Service Staff files was gathered partly from the FBI, the Justice Department, "and, in some cases, simply newspaper clippings."

The show asked Ralph Thrower, IRS commissioner when the unit was formed, if he could think of any reason why the names cited by ABC should turn up in the unit's files.

"It would tax my imagination," he said without elaboration.

The current IRS commissioner, Donald C. Alexander, was quoted by ABC News as having promised to destroy the unit's files, but it didn't say if this has been done yet.

Last year, Alexander said he abolished the Special Service Staff three months after taking office in May 1973.

Meanwhile the Miami Herald reported in its Saturday editions that two IRS operatives stole a confidential filing cabinet from the Miami office of a congressional candidate in 1972.

THE NEWSPAPER SAID Nelson Vega, 22, one of the operatives, told of the burglary in a sworn statement given Friday to State Atty. Richard Gerstein.

The victim was Evelio Estrella, a Cuban-born naturalized American who ran unsuccessfully against Rep. Claude Pepper in 1972. Vega was quoted as saying that nothing of value was found in the cabinet.

Vega told investigators that his partner was Roberto Novoa, who was shot to death by his wife last year, the Herald said. The shooting was ruled "excusable" by an inquest jury.

The Herald, in previous stories, has identified Vega and Novoa as two of an estimated 30 IRS operatives reportedly paid to spy on the sex and drinking habits of some 30 public officials.

IRS officials in Miami and Washington refused comment on the report.

Estrella, reached by the Herald in Quito, Ecuador, said the cabinet contained only routine campaign reports and other personal documents. He said he didn't know why anyone would want to steal it.

U.S. aides claim Paris pact voided

By SPENCER DAVIS
WASHINGTON (AP) — The 1973 Paris peace agreements on South Vietnam have become inoperable because of the major Communist offensive in that country, State Department officials said Friday.

The officials, who asked not to be named, indicated that the United States will make a basic policy statement shortly on its view on the collapse of the peace agreements.

State Department officials also said they believe Communist forces may attempt to establish their own government in South Vietnam, instead of vanishing into the jungles as in the past.

They predicted that the Communists would attempt to establish a visible government in Hue, the old imperial capital of Vietnam, located in South Vietnam's Central Highlands.

The Saigon government has abandoned much of the Central Highlands, but there was still bitter fighting in Hue.

The department's Indochina experts believe the strategic nature of the Vietnam war has been fundamentally altered and irreparably altered as a result of the Communist offensive, the officials said.

They said the conflict is rapidly moving from a guerrilla battle into an orthodox limited war somewhat along the style of the Korean war.

The ramifications of the new situation are still being pondered, the officials added.

Meanwhile, White House Press Secretary Ron Nessen reported, then retracted, that the U.S. had asked for a reconvening of nations that signed the Paris accords that ended direct American military involvement in Vietnam.

At his regular daily briefing, Nessen said the U.S. had gotten no response to "an effort to reconvene signatories of the Paris peace accord."

Later, Nessen told reporters: "My using the word reconvene was incorrect."

He then gave reporters copies of a previously

Climb in factory orders regarded as a 'good sign'

By RICHARD HUGHES
UPI Business Writer

Orders of major products from factories rose for the first time in five months in February, the government said Friday. The rise in durable goods orders was viewed as an indication of economic improvement.

"If it's true, it's a good sign," said Mary Gottchalk, economist at First National City Bank.

The problem, she said, is that the report is based on preliminary statistics and the "margin of error is large." The Commerce Department will issue a revised and more accurate report in two weeks, she said.

In other developments, interest for prime business loans was set at 7½ per cent by First National City Bank, and the Federal Reserve reported the nation's money supply rose 0.7 per cent for the first growth in weeks.

Informed sources also said Labor Department figures will show next week that the number of persons filing for unemployment compensation declined for the eighth week in nine.

This means that, while unemployment remains high, the rate of layoffs has declined substantially and steadily since reaching a peak in January.

The rise in durable goods orders of 2 per cent to $36.77 billion was not broad enough to indicate a quick turnaround in the economy, but it was the first hopeful sign for economic improvement since the downward movement in new orders began last September.

Late Friday, travelers advisories were issued for the desert and mountain areas, and small craft warnings were posted along most of the California coast, the spokeswoman said.

She said campers and boaters could expect the advisories—posted because of the high winds—to remain in effect most, if not all, of the weekend.

Gusty winds to blow kite weather into L.B.

March winds gusting to 30 miles an hour are expected to blow across the Southland today on the heels of a weak storm front that promised a 20 per cent chance of rain late Friday and early this morning.

National Weather Service forecasters said their predictions should cheer the Long Beach Recreation Department, which has scheduled the 49th annual Long Beach Kite Festival at 11 a.m. on the beach at the foot of Junipero Avenue.

"It's going to be a beautiful day for kite flying," said a weather service spokeswoman. She added, however, that forecasters advised warm clothing for kite flyers. The mercury is expected to hover around the 60-degree mark all day, forecasters said.

New integration plan for Boston

Combined News Services

BOSTON — A court-appointed panel unveiled a new plan Friday which they said would desegregate more public school classrooms but would involve the busing of fewer students than the interim plan that has brought controversy and sporadic violence. The plan, to take effect in September, would involve the busing of 10,000 to 15,000 students. The current program, which has met with strong resistance, requires the busing of 18,000 students to desegregate about half as many schools. There are about 87,000 public school pupils in Boston. Robert A. Dentler, dean of the School of Education at Boston University and one of the originators of the idea, said the plan calls for a range of racial percentages varying district to district, from a high of 85 per cent white and 10 per cent black in East Boston to 25 per cent white, 50 per cent black in the Burke district of Roxbury, a predominantly black section.

Richmond escapes flood

RICHMOND, Va.—Richmond escaped major flood damage Friday as the rain-swelled James River apparently crested during the afternoon at least a foot below predictions. The National Weather Service reported the river reached a high point of 20.69 feet at city locks at 2:30 p.m., but added it would be 24 hours before the river fell below flood stage. A critical riverside pumping station continued to function at peak capacity, preventing water from gushing out of backed-up sewers in the industrial Shockoe Valley District downstream by pumping overflow back into the James. If the pumping station gave out, up to 10 feet of water would have filled the bottom of the city's East Side within 15 minutes, most of it coming through sandbagged manholes.

Air crash wreck sighted

TACOMA, Wash.—The wreckage of an Air Force C-141 Starlifter jet transport which crashed with 16 persons aboard was sighted Friday in the rugged Olympic Mountains, but rescue attempts were halted because of darkness with ground crews less than two miles from the crash site. Officials said a search plane found the downed jet but the fate of the occupants was not known. The Starlifter carried six Navy passengers and 10 Air Force crewmen.

VW won't build facility in U.S.

HANOVER, West Germany — The Volkswagen auto firm has dropped plans to build a plant in the United States, a top member of the VW supervisory board said Friday. "The American project is not subject for discussion anymore. The matter is finished," said Erich Kuepfer, economics minister of Lower Saxony state, which holds a substantial interest in Volkswagenwerk AG. The decision came about a month after Toni Schmuecker, a former executive of Ford, took over management of the financially troubled Volkswagen from Rudolf Leidung, who had strongly favored construction of an American plant. Leidung resigned in the face of losses of up to $200 million for last year.

Chile frees, exiles 95

MEXICO CITY—A group of 95 Chilean political exiles, freed by the Chilean military junta after months of secret bargaining with Mexico, arrived here Friday night aboard a chartered commercial jetliner. First off the plane was ailing 63-year old Laura Allende, sister of Chile's late Marxist President Salvador Allende. "We come here with our hearts broken because many persons are still tortured throughout our country, from north to south," she said.

Monarchy abolished

ADDIS ABABA, Ethiopia — A brief radio announcement Friday by Ethiopia's military rulers ended this country's colorful 3,000-year-old monarchy that could trace its lineage to the Queen of Sheba. Directly affected were 82-year-old Emperor Haile Selassie, under house guard in the royal palace since his removal last September, and his ailing, middle-aged son Crown Prince Asfa Wossen, who is in Switzerland. When the generals removed Haile Selassie they offered Asfa the figurehead title of king, but Friday's edict by the provisional military advisory council said it was clear he was too sick to act as monarch and that he could no longer use his royal title. All other royal ranks also were abolished.

British inflation 20%

LONDON — Britain's inflation rate, one of the highest in the world, hovered around a record 20 per cent in February for the second straight month, the government said Friday. The employment department issued statistics that showed consumer prices soared by 1.7 per cent in February. The government blamed higher prices for clothing, bread, other foodstuffs, used autos and candy. The rise for the year ending February was 19.9 per cent, the same as the record annual increase set in January.

Own road to socialism

LISBON, Portugal — Socialist Party leader Mario Soares told a rally at the Lisbon bull ring Friday that Portugal must reject foreign pressure and create its own version of socialism. Soares, who also is foreign minister in Portugal's leftist military government, told an estimated 20,000 followers. "We want a socialism that isn't Swedish or Russian or Chinese... we don't want to trade one kind of imperialism for another," Soares is considered a moderate and is a staunch backer of Portugal's membership in NATO.

Argentine turmoil

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina — Sixteen political killings in the last two days added fuel Friday to reports that President Isabel Peron is facing her gravest political test since succeeding her late husband, Gen. Juan D. Peron, last July 1. But government leaders and key politicians scoff at rumors that a revolt is brewing. "There will be no coup d'etat in Argentina for many years," Ferdinand Perini, head of the Peronist bloc in congress, said on Thursday. Since New Year's Day there have been 92 killings in Argentina; despite a major government drive to rid the country of terrorism.

Ike felt RFK was 'unfit' for presidency

Combined News Services

As a former president, Dwight D. Eisenhower once wrote a friend that the late Robert F. Kennedy was unfit for the White House and described him as "shallow, vain and untrustworthy — on top of which he is indecisive."

In the same letter, Eisenhower expressed himself as puzzled that his former vice president, Richard M. Nixon, should be labeled a conservative, saying he found him a moderate along the lines of Nelson A. Rockefeller, now the vice president.

The two-page letter was written from Eisenhower's winter home in Indio on March 28, 1963, to an old friend, Robert Cutler, who had served under him as a special presidential assistant.

Cutler died last year and the letter is being offered for sale by auctioneer Charles Hamilton on April 3 at New York's Waldorf Astoria hotel.

It has been given a catalogue value of $600 and described as "without doubt, the most important Eisenhower letter yet to appear at public auction, of much historical significance."

At the time, Kennedy, a Democrat, and Nixon, a Republican, were seeking the presidential nomination, although President Lyndon B. Johnson had yet to announce that he would not seek re-election. Kennedy was assassinated before the nominating convention.

"Two or three things are bothering me very much about the political situation," Eisenhower wrote. "I am disgusted at the newspaper accounts of Kennedy's receptions throughout the country. It is difficult for me to see a single qualification that the man has for the presidency."

"I think he is shallow, vain and untrustworthy — on top of which he is indecisive. Yet his attraction for many people is extraordinary. In my opinion, what he would do to this country, if elected, would be nothing at all to what has happened to it over these past seven years."

"Another thing that puzzles me is the labels that the writers pin upon various candidates. We now find Dick Nixon constantly referred to as a conservative or a rightist; certainly in our eight years I knew him as a 'moderate' or what you might call a 'middle of the roader.'"

Eisenhower then listed men to whom the term "moderate" applied, including the present Vice President Rockefeller. The letter continued:

"Yet, in domestic affairs, I have been able to make (sic) very little difference in the political philosophies of Rockefeller and Nixon."

Humanitarian

President Valery Giscard d'Estaing on Friday decorated Emilee Kennedy Shriver, sister of late President John F. Kennedy, with the Chevalier of the Legion of Honor for her humanitarian work while her husband Sargent Shriver was ambassador to France.

The ceremony in Paris' Elysee Palace was attended by the late President's children, Caroline and John F. Jr. But his widow, Jacqueline Onassis, declined the invitation because she is in mourning for her second husband, Aristotle Onassis, who died last Saturday.

During her husband's service as envoy in Paris 1968-1970, Mrs. Shriver was active in raising funds for French institutions for mentally retarded children.

Prisoner

James W. McCord Jr., the Watergate burglar whose letter to Judge John J. Sirica tore the lid off the nation's worst political scandal, entered federal prison in Allenwood, Pa., Friday to begin serving a 1-to-5-year term.

McCord, 51, was accompanied to the Allenwood Federal Prison Camp by his wife, Sarah, and two daughters, Nancy, 18, and Ann, 20. McCord hugged his wife before stepping from the car, which quickly sped away.

He was met in the parking lot of the minimum security facility by prison Superintendent Lawrence

Taylor, and after registering he held an impromptu news conference in which he called his involvement in Watergate "obviously the worst mistake of my life."

"It's very necessary that all of it came out that has come out," McCord said. "I have no regrets about telling the truth on the matter. In the long run it will be extremely beneficial to the country."

McCord, a 19-year veteran of the CIA, was the bugging expert on the burglary team which was arrested inside the Democratic National Committee headquarters.

Friendly

Alabama's Democratic Gov. George C. Wallace welcomed former California Gov. Ronald Reagan to Dixie Friday and told him he doesn't care if the "hierarchy" in the Democratic Party likes it or not.

Reagan, a Republican, was in Cullman, Ala., for a speech Friday night.

Wallace and Reagan met in a motel room and discounted questions about a possible Reagan-Wallace or Wallace-Reagan presidential ticket in 1976. But the Alabama governor said "nothing is inconceivable."

Both pointed out that each is active in his own party and that they have disagreed philosophically on some things.

Alice

American entertainer Alice Cooper will not be allowed to enter Australia, Immigration Minister Clyde Amerson said Friday in Melbourne.

"He has not made an application to enter Australia. If he does he will not be allowed entry," he said. "This sort of performance is sick. I am not going to allow a degenerate who could powerfully influence the young and the weak-minded to enter this country and stage this sort of exhibition here."

"Descriptions I have been given of his performances indicate they are primitive and barbaric," he said. "This sort of performance is sick. I am not going to allow a degenerate who could powerfully influence the young and the weak-minded to enter this country and stage this sort of exhibition here."

Uninvited

Patrick Henry's great-great-grandson won't be at the 200th anniversary observance of his ancestor's famed "liberty or death" speech in Richmond, Va., Sunday at St. John's Church.

He hasn't been invited. Instead of watching the 2:30 p.m. invitation-only re-enactment of the speech at the church, James Marshall Henry III says he'll pay $1 to attend a 3 p.m. re-enactment at the Richmond Coliseum.

Henry says he didn't ask for an invitation to the 350-seat church where Patrick Henry asked for "liberty or death" on March 23, 1775, and a spokesman for the sponsoring Richmond Independence Bicentennial Commission said "there was no conscientious effort" to invite descendants of Patrick Henry to the event.

"There would be no way to sort them out," said Kent Druyvesteyn, the commission's executive director.

Henry, a 31-year-old tobacco company executive who lives in suburban Chester, says he has no idea how many other descendants of colonial America's greatest orator there may be. Probably a great many.

Patrick Henry had two wives and 17 children, including seven daughters and 10 sons. "There were 50 to 60 grandchildren when he was alive," says Henry.

Bill aims at 'amnesty' NOx unit fines attacked

From Our L. A. Bureau

State Sen. Nate Holden, D-Los Angeles, said Friday he will seek legislation to forgive an estimated 1,500 car owners who have been cited by the California Highway Patrol for failing to install nitrogen oxide smog devices on their older model cars.

At a later date, Holden said, he will try to work out a program under which the 400,000 motorists who have already fitted the devices will get state-sponsored refunds.

Holden made the statement at a press conference with Supervisor Kenneth Hahn in which the two voiced confidence the controversial law requiring the NOx devices on 1966-70 cars in the South Coast Air Basin will be repealed.

Holden authored the NOx repeal bill, which was passed by the Senate but became bottled up in the Assembly transportation committee until this week.

Holden said release of the repeal bill from the transportation committee was the "big hurdle" and he predicted it would now be "a downhill fight all the way to the governor's desk."

The repeal bill now goes before the Assembly Ways and Means Committee on April 1 and should it clear that committee it will go to the Assembly floor April 3.

Once the bill gets to the floor, Holden said, he will move to attach an amendment offering forgiveness to those motorists already cited.

He said the refund program would be done through a separate bill at a later stage so that passage of the repeal bill will not be endangered.

Holden said he feels there is a good chance of getting 54 votes for passage of the repeal bill on an urgency basis so that it can be immediately effective. If there is only a simple 41-vote majority to repeal the law, he said, the repeal may be delayed until Jan. 1 next year.

Youth guilty in 2 murders

By TOM WILLMAN
Staff Writer

A 19-year-old Long Beach man stood and wept softly Friday as a Superior Court clerk intoned the verdicts of a jury which found him guilty of committing two murders in one summer week of 1973.

He claimed the protections against self-incrimination of the Fifth Amendment Thursday, and Friday, while the Hale verdict was being returned, Gaither was set free for lack of evidence against him, officers said.

Another witness was 19-year-old Mark Chavers, who had been arrested in the Berbower slaying shortly after it occurred. Chavers was a juvenile at the time, and a murder petition subsequently was sustained against him.

HALL SAID that he asked Chavers in court to verify 1973 police reports indicating he had told officers that he and Hale had planned to rob the meat delivery man; Chavers denied it.

Moments later Chavers contradicted himself, Hall said: He had told police that version, but it was a lie and in fact he had been the one who killed Berbower.

In each killing, there had been reports that more than one person was involved, and some eyewitness testimony during the trial linked Hale to both the July 27 shooting of Suzuki and the Aug. 3 Berbower murder.

Another witness, 18-year-old Tim May, also repudiated remarks which the prosecution alleged he had made to police at the time of the shootings.

HE TESTIFIED he never told investigators he had seen Hale shoot Berbower and then drop the gun.

The prosecution alleged, however, that early in the investigation May had said he'd picked up the gun and given it to a friend; that police went to that friend, found the gun and seized it.

A ballistics expert also testified that the same gun—a western-style .357 magnum revolver loaded with .38-caliber ammunition—was used in both killings, the prosecutor said. Still other testimony, he added, showed the gun was sold to Hale before the crimes.

The jury of eight women and four men required just four hours to reach its verdicts in the two-week trial, but the tears of lanky Charles Lamont Hale caused at least one juror to leave the courtroom choking back his own sobs.

Hale was found guilty of first degree murder in the deaths of John H. Suzuki, slain in his East Willow Street clock shop, and meat delivery man Ben Berbower, shot to death as he sat at the wheel of his parked truck.

HALE, WHO was a fugitive for 11 months before an informant's tip led to his arrest in Seattle, Wash., also was found guilty of using a firearm in both killings—findings which technically add years to any sentence he receives.

Hale's arrest was the result of a telephone tip to the Independent, Press-Telegram's Secret Witness program.

A $500 reward was paid upon the arrest of the fugitive, and the informant, Secret Witness DED747, became eligible for another $1,500 reward in the event of Hale's conviction.

Judge Pat Mullendore, in whose court Hale was tried, scheduled the defendant's probation hearing and sentencing for April 16.

Hale's trial was marked by the confusing and uneasy testimony of former friends.

ONE WITNESS, 20-year-old Willie Lee Gaither, was subpoenaed by Deputy Dist. Atty. Michael Hall to testify while under arrest for investigation in

Sanitarium faces coroner's probe

From Our L. A. Bureau

County health officials disclosed Friday they have asked the coroner's office to look into circumstances of seven "unusual" deaths in the past year at the Garden of Lebanon Sanitarium in Downey.

Bernard Weintraub, chief of the health facilities division, made the disclosure following a meeting with other county officials and the Downey police department, which is conducting a criminal investigation into patient abuses at the sanitarium.

Weintraub said his staff considered the seven deaths abnormal. "There was something about them that was unusual. There appeared to be something out of order," he said.

He noted it might be necessary to exhume some of the bodies in the seven cases.

Meanwhile Downey Police Capt. Jim Shade said his department's investigation is continuing and

Out of bounds

I live on the east side of Long Beach, north of Wardlow Road, east of Norwalk Boulevard and south of Woodson Street. My mailing address is Long Beach, but my children must attend schools in the ABC district. How did this situation come about? M.G., Long Beach.

When your area was annexed by the city of Long Beach in 1965, it already was part of the Bloomfield School District, which that same year joined with the Artesia and Carmanita-Ecclesior districts to become the ABC

Unified School District. The annexation ordinance, which was approved by the voters in your neighborhood, did not affect the school district boundaries, which can be changed only by a complicated set of procedures outlined in Sections 2361-2369 of the California Election Code. To remove your area from the ABC section and include it in the Long Beach school district would require among other things the approval of both districts. And since a loss of students means a loss of income for a district, it's unlikely that the ABC officials would ever approve such a change. School district boundaries often do not follow city limits. The Long Beach district includes most of Long Beach, all of Signal Hill, Catalina Island, most of Lakewood and some unincorporated areas in these cities.

On air?

An item called air fern is being advertised as a living plant which grows on air. I have been told that it is not a plant but is made up of marine animals called bryozoans which are sprayed green and can't grow because they are dead. Can you find out about this? I.S., Long Beach.

Your information is probably correct. Action Line phoned a botanist, a zoologist and the research director of the State Fisheries Laboratory and all of them said the so-called air fern appears to be bryozoans, the microscopic marine animals that live in plant-like colonies. Dr. Richard Lincoln, botanist at Long Beach State University, said one of his students brought a sample of air fern to class. The sample looked plant-like and appeared to be bryozoans. He said they leached what looked like green dye from it. Dr. Richard K. Allen, zoologist at Los Angeles State University, said you can tell fern from bryozoans because fern leaves have small nobby growths (sporangia) on the undersides and bryozoans form in clusters and have small holes in each tiny compartment where the animal lived. He said he had never heard of any fern that could live on air.

Not at easement

A friend of mine, an 80-year-old widow, lives on a five-acre parcel of desert land in Morongo Valley. She officially has conceded a 33-foot easement on all sides of her property, but her neighbor, who owns the adjoining five acres, has not. The neighbor recently erected along his property line a chain-link fence, which narrows the entrance to my friend's property to the 33-foot easement on her land. This situation preys on her mind and she would like to know if any government agency can force her neighbor to provide the easement. K.B., Long Beach.

When your friend and her neighbor bought their land from the federal government, they were required, under the terms of their deeds, to give up the 33-foot easement for possible future use as a roadway or utility right-of-way, but no government agency currently is going to enforce this requirement, according to a spokesman for the U.S. Bureau of Land Management. Unless the county wants to use the easement for a road or someone other agency requests the right of way, the federal government isn't going to press your friend's neighbor for the easement. Since the easement provision also was intended to provide access to a desert landowner's property, your friend could try to file a civil suit against her neighbor on the grounds that his fence limits access to her property, and this really is her only recourse, the government spokesman said.

Red means stop

For many months as I have driven east on the Artesia Freeway (Route 91) and have left it at the Knott Avenue exit in Buena Park, I have been perplexed as to why right turns on the red signal aren't permitted at the foot of the ramp. The signal stays red a long time and a lot of cars are frequently backed up at this intersection. Since Knott is a wide boulevard at this point, it appears right turns on red would be in order. Can you find out why they are not? K.J.N., Lakewood.

Such turns are seen as potentially hazardous because of the heavy volume of through traffic on Knott and the large number of vehicles turning right from the off ramp, according to Milton Stark of the California Division of Highways. Right turns on red "would cause a conflict between traffic entering Knott and through traffic." He said there was a relatively high accident rate there before these turns were prohibited and there definitely are no plans to permit them again.

221,000 Fords and Chryslers recalled

DETROIT (UPI) — The Ford Motor Co. and Chrysler Corp. Friday announced the recall of more than 221,000 current-model cars and light trucks, including about 21,000 Ford vehicles that may have carburetor defects that could result in engine compartment fires.

Ford said its recall involves a total of 156,300 current model cars and light trucks built between last Aug. 19 and Feb. 18 that are equipped with 460 cubic inch engines — the largest Ford builds. Only 20 per cent of the vehicles may have the fire hazard problem, Ford said.

THERE have been five reports of underhood fires, but no injuries or accidents, a Ford spokesman said. The cars may have a fuel inlet plug which could be dislodged, resulting in gasoline leaking onto the hot engine, he said.

The reported fires were minor, the spokesman said, with damage of no more than $100 to $200.

Chrysler said it was notifying the 65,000 owners of 1975-model Plymouth Gran Fury, Dodge Monaco, Chrysler and Imperial cars that their vehicles may be equipped with faulty jacks. The jacks could fail in use, allowing the cars to fall.

A Chrysler spokesman said there had been two reports of jack failures on company-owned cars. The jacks will be repaired by dealers at no cost to owners.

Chrysler also said it is recalling about 300 light-duty 1975-model Dodge trucks equipped with snow plows. The vehicles may be equipped with wheels with a load rating too low for the vehicle.

Besides the possibility of underhood fires on the Ford cars, the company said another 3,000 cars may have improperly made secondary throttle stop levers. While there have been no reports of throttles sticking, Ford said plant tests indicate the throttle could be held open under hard acceleration of a cold engine.

CARS involved in the Ford recall are Mark IV, Lincoln, Thunderbird, Ford LTD, Mercury Montego, Mercury Marquis, Mercury Cougar, Ford Torino and Ford Elite models equipped with the 460 cid engines. Light trucks are the F 150, F 250, F 350, Econoline 250 and Econoline 350 models.

Inspection of the Ford vehicles will be at no charge to owners. Of the vehicles being recalled by Ford, 140,271 are in the United States, 14,835 are in Canada and 1,197 in other parts of the world.

Farm aid bill likely to hike milk prices gains

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Agriculture Committee approved a bill Friday giving emergency aid to farmers in a move the government says would raise the price of milk.

The measure is similar to legislation approved Thursday by the House, although it raises government support for the cotton and dairy industries.

THE Agriculture Department, which opposes the bill, said it could raise milk prices by at least 8 cents a gallon over the next year. Backers of the bill challenge this figure, arguing that inflation could account for most of the expected price increases.

The bill reported to the full Senate raises the level of parity from 80 per cent, as it stood in the House bill, to 85 per cent. Agriculture Department figures indicate this increases the overall cost of the bill to consumers from $495 million to $593 million.

The Senate, pushing to start its Easter recess, was expected to consider the bill today, but a conference between the House and Senate to resolve anticipated differences in the measure as passed by each body was unlikely to take place until after the recess ends in April, delaying its delivery to President Ford.

Secretary of Agriculture Earl Butz said Friday he would recommend that Ford veto the bill. He said it would set back government efforts at reestablishing a free market.

The Agriculture Department, in a letter to Agriculture Committee Chairman Herman E. Talmadge, D-Ga., estimated that the bill would result in increases of more than 8 cents per gallon of milk, 10 cents per pound of cheese, and 20 cents per pound of butter — several cents more in each category than the House-passed bill.

The increases are caused by the parity increase for dairy farmers, provided in an amendment introduced by Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn.

"I do not like 80 per cent parity," Humphrey said. "It's an outrage. It will bankrupt our people and I didn't come here to do that. I don't give a hoot about what the secretary of agriculture says."

PARITY is a price level set by the Agriculture Department at which a farmer should be able to make a profit on his product.

Establishment of 85 per cent parity means that if the market price of the product falls below 85 per cent of the theoretical parity price the government begins buying up the product in order to force the market price up to the 85 per cent level.

Demos avoid battle of the sexes in convention choice

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Democratic National Committee stayed off a war between the sexes Friday by voting to favor as their national convention site cities in states which have approved the Equal Rights Amendment.

The 360-member committee voted unanimously to give site selection preference to cities whose states have ratified the constitutional amendment outlawing sex discrimination.

BUT IN A spirit of compromise, it rejected a proposal that would have forbidden placing the convention in any city where the state has not approved ERA.

Before adjourning, the committee adopted a resolution expressing opposition to any further military aid to Indochina during this fiscal year.

The committee also worked toward compromise of another volatile issue — the question of national party supervision of state and local Democratic activities.

The deal on ERA came after an impassioned debate during which one supporter of the pro-ERA group, National Committeewoman Liz Carpenter, accused National Chairman Robert S. Strauss of "tactics that would make Henry Kissinger look like a humble man."

ALTHOUGH committee leaders warned that barring some cities for the convention would hurt the party, a number of women members said locating the convention in an anti-ERA state would guarantee bitterness at a time when the party badly needed harmony.

To revive homebuilding House votes interest subsidy

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House passed an emergency housing program Friday which its sponsors said would revive the depressed homebuilding industry and ultimately help the entire economy recover.

However, Republicans predicted President Ford would veto the bill, passed by the House on a vote of 259 to 106.

Earlier, the House defeated 242-126 a Republican substitute which had Ford administration backing. It would have extended existing government programs which funnel money into the private mortgage lending markets.

As amended during nearly seven hours of debate, the successful Democratic-backed bill would provide $1.3 billion in subsidies to lower interest rates on $12 billion worth of housing mortgages.

Seventy per cent of the money would go for subsidies on purchases of newly constructed homes, with the remaining funds permitted for sales of the backlog of new but unsold homes and the existing stock of used homes.

Final approval of the legislation could enable home buyers to start scouting around for mortgage interest rates subsidized down to 6 and 7 per cent by the summer, House Banking Chairman Henry S. Reuss estimated.

According to Democratic figures, the bill would set in motion the construction of about 400,000 new homes.

Eligible buyers could earn no more than 120 per cent of their area's median income — with the average such income ranging between $15,000 and $18,000 — and could choose a home valued at no more than $38,000.

Ten per cent of the $1.3 billion in subsidy funds would be allocated to buyers in high-cost cities for purchases of homes valued up to $42,000.

In such cities as Atlanta, Dallas, Chicago, Detroit, New York, Seattle, Los Angeles, Houston and San Francisco, the median price for a new home exceeded $42,000 last winter.

The tax cut bill under consideration by the Senate would provide a 5 per cent tax credit, up to $2,000, for any person buying a new home as a principal residence between March 13 and Dec. 31 this year.

The $2,000 limit means the person buying a $40,000 home and the one buying a $100,000 residence could subtract the same amount from their income tax bills.

Republicans contended the House act would be counterproductive. They said regulations to carry out the subsidy bill would not be available for at least six months and, in the meantime, all activity in the housing market would cease as homebuyers postponed purchases until the cheap mortgage money was available.

In addition, the ranking GOP Banking Committee member, Rep. Albert W. Johnson of Pennsylvania, said the subsidies would trigger new rounds of inflation in housing prices.

He said thrift institutions report an abundance of money to lend but few buyers are confident enough of the economy's well-being to take on long-term debts.

The problem is not that interest rates are too high — now between 8 and 9½ per cent at competitive market rates — but that the fear of inflation is too pervasive, Johnson said.

He said the subsidy bill would only make inflation worse.

Earlier Friday, a House banking subcommittee voted 12 to 1 for authority for the government to pick up mortgage payments temporarily for homeowners forced out of work by the recession.

The payments would be for up to $250 a month, repayable at interest not to exceed 8 per cent.

Homeowners would be eligible if they can't make mortgage payments because of "involuntary unemployment or underemployment due to adverse economic conditions."

Insulation tax-aid bill gains

WASHINGTON (AP) — A multimillion-dollar special tax cut to encourage Americans to make energy-saving home improvements, such as putting in insulation, storm doors and windows, was tentatively approved Friday by the House Ways and Means Committee.

The decision, coming on an informal 10 to 4 show of hands, was the first made by the committee in a week's work on proposals contained in a sweeping energy tax bill introduced by Chairman Al Ullman, D-Ore.

The idea of giving a tax benefit to people for doing something they should normally be expected to do anyway, said Rep. Andrew Jacobs Jr., D-Ind., is like giving a special tax cut for "someone to brush his teeth in the morning."

Why do we need to bribe anyone to do something in his own interest?"

Ullman defended his proposal, saying there are "millions and millions of Americans with homes who are concerned about their heating bills. It is tough and it is going to get worse." The provision, he said, is an incentive which "might make it possible for them to get something done."

Rep. Charles A. Vanik, D-Ohio, saw the provision as some help for the nation's unemployed persons who, instead of wasting the time that they are out of a job, are doing their own home insulation work and "fixing their houses up."

Rep. James A. Burke, D-Mass., said he "can't understand why anybody would be against" the special tax cut, since heating bills are high and this provision is aimed at "cutting down use of fuel — that's what this fight is all about."

As proposed by Ullman, the provision would give a credit against income tax for insulation installed by individuals in their main homes. It would be a tax credit of 40 per cent of the first $500 spent and then 20 per cent of the next $500, for a top $300 in tax credit for a maximum $1,000 of such spending. It would apply just to homes in existence as of March 17, the date Ullman introduced his bill.

The provision would be available only this year and next year, and would cover such things as insulation, storm doors and windows, weather stripping around doors — but not such things as heavy drapes. The panel's tax staff experts estimated the provision could amount to a tax cut of up to $350 million a year for the rest of this year and all of next year. If the new tax benefit provides the incentive to do more such activity than is being done now, the experts said it could reach about $500 million a year.

Ford hits strip-mine curbs

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford said Friday the strip mining controls Congress is insisting on would cause "unnecessary loss of coal production" at a time when the nation needs all the energy resources it has.

In a speech prepared for about 100 coal industry executives and union officials, Ford said "coal is America's ace in the hole" and Congress' approach might defeat his goals for development of the resource.

"I have said the U.S.

must double its annual coal production to 1.2 billion tons annually by 1985," Ford said.

Million lung cancer deaths seen in decade

By AL ROSSITER JR.
UPI Science Editor

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — If lung cancer continues to increase at current rates it will kill a million Americans in the next 10 years, the president of the American Cancer Society said Friday.

Dr. George P. Rosemond said this will occur even though lung cancer is the one major cancer for which the key cause is known—cigarette smoking. He said four out of five lung cancer deaths could be avoided if people didn't smoke.

"DESPITE the clarity of the evidence and despite most intensive public education programs by health agencies, schools, government and much of the media, more cigarettes are being sold than ever before," Rosemond told a science writers' seminar.

"Young girls and women have been taking up smoking at startling rates," he said.

"And the chief cause of lung cancer is flagrantly advertised on billboards, in magazines and newspapers."

Rosemond, a professor at the Temple University School of Medicine in Philadelphia, said lung cancer claimed the lives of two of every 100,000 men in 1930. The latest figures show that 50 of every 100,000 men are dying annually from the disease. The figures are lower for women—11 per 100,000—but Rosemond said they are catching up quickly.

"The trends are ominous. Lung cancer is now the third cancer killer of females, behind breast and colon-rectum. If the increase continues at its present rate, within a very few years it will replace colon and rectum and move up to second place."

The American Cancer Society estimates that 91,000 Americans will be stricken with lung cancer this year and 81,000 will die from the disease.

Despite recent discoveries of cancer causing agents among the chemicals and materials of modern life, Rosemond said cigarettes are the major cancer threat. In addition, smoking is considered a major risk in heart disease and a cause of emphysema.

"IN THE next 10 years lung cancer alone, if present rates continue to increase, will cost about a million lives," Rosemond said. "Is this an acceptable rate of loss to our country? I hope not."

Despite the grim lung cancer statistics, Rosemond said that five-year survival rates have been increasing in nine types of cancer which include 20 per cent of all cancer cases. And he said medicine is on the verge of a decade "that may be the most exciting we have had in cancer control in this country."

"More cancers are being cured than ever before and more lives of those with this disease are being extended."

Deaths from prescribed medicine told in study

By DOLORES KATZ
Knight News Service

About one of every 350 hospitalized patients who receives a drug dies from it, according to a report published last year by a group known as the Boston Collaborative Drug Surveillance Program.

From a study of 11,500 hospitalized adults, the group determined that the death rate from adverse reactions to drugs was 0.29 per cent. Applying that statistic nationwide, the group estimated that some 29,000 deaths a year are caused by drugs administered in hospitals.

SOME of these deaths are unavoidable. Every drug, including aspirin, can cause side effects, and everybody who takes a drug runs a varying risk of being harmed by it.

Many doctors believe that the majority of those estimated 29,000 deaths a year could be avoided, by prescribing less of the drug, by more careful monitoring of the patient or by prescribing a less dangerous drug.

A major problem is that most doctors know relatively little about the drugs they prescribe. Pharmacology is not extensively taught in medical schools, and a number of studies have shown that doctors get most of their information about drugs from advertisements and drug company salesmen. Information about dosage schedules — the proper amount to administer — is often imprecise and arbitrary.

The experience of a Montreal Hospital illustrates how many lives could be saved by more careful and knowledgeable administration of drugs.

Ten years ago, R. John Ruedy, director of pharmacology at Montreal General Hospital, began a survey of adverse drug reactions at the hospital. Of 731 patients studied over a 12-month period, almost one in five suffered an adverse reaction to a drug. Of the 67 deaths recorded among the patients studied, one quarter (17) were the direct result of drug reactions.

FOUR classes of drugs accounted for more than 60 per cent of the problem — antibacterials, insulin, diuretics (used to rid the body of excess water) and digitalis.

None of the drugs were new drugs that might be unfamiliar to doctors. Most of them had been on the market for more than 50 years.

Digitalis, given to heart failure patients in order to increase the force of heart contractions, was responsible 21 per cent of the total adverse reactions, more than any other drug.

Twelve patients died from digitalis therapy. Nine of these patients had been suffering from some degree of kidney failure, a fact which their doctors presumably knew. Since the kidneys are responsible for clearing digitalis from the body, these patients would excrete the drug much more slowly than normal. A "normal" dose of digitalis, therefore, would be too much for these patients and could easily cause fatal reactions.

ALL nine patients had received "loading" doses of digitalis, higher than normal amounts given at the beginning of treatment to bring about a rapid effect. For these patients, the loading dose was fatal.

Following this initial investigation, Ruedy and his colleagues began a two-year study of digitalis to determine the proper doses for different classes of patients.

The study included an expanded survey of drug reactions in the hospital. In two three-month periods in 1967 and 1968, 41 deaths from digitalis therapy were recorded.

At the end of the study, Ruedy began an education program to alert doctors to several important factors that should be taken into account when prescribing digitalis: kidney function, body weight (patients weighing less than 150 pounds are more susceptible to digitalis side effects) and the fact that patients suffering from irregular heart rhythm as well as heart failure are more susceptible to the toxic effects of digitalis.

A REPEAT survey of drug reactions was made in 1969 and 1970 and compared with the 1967 and 1968

Warning on fake Easter basket grass

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission warned Friday that synthetic grass in Easter baskets should not be placed near fire.

Although most manufacturers have turned to slow-burning polypropylene, the commission said, consumers have no way of determining whether the synthetic grass may be composed of highly flammable shredded cellophane and waxed paper.

Maximum 80-hour work week demanded More doctor strikes threatened

Associated Press

Interns and residents in a growing number of hospitals are organizing to demand shorter working hours and higher salaries. Some doctors say there could be more strikes like the ones now under way in British Columbia and just ended in New York City.

"We think there is nothing unprofessional about organizing to stand up for the rights of our colleagues and our patients," said Dr. Robert Harmon, president of the Physicians National Housestaff Association which claims more than 100 affiliates at hospitals in 27 states. "Housestaffs are organized and do intend to negotiate and work aggressively for better hours and working conditions."

HARMON said three hospitals in New York, Los Angeles and Ann Arbor, Mich., have interns and residents groups recognized as collective bargaining units by the National Labor Relations Board. He said organizing moves have begun at hospitals in several other cities.

The housestaff of the Cook County Hospital in Chicago has scheduled a meeting Monday to discuss the possibility of a strike or other job action to win recognition as a bargaining unit.

Interns in Los Angeles County, who formed a collective bargaining unit known as the Joint Council in 1973, begin negotiations on a new contract next week. The current contract provides a work week ranging from 80 to 110 hours and a $13,000 annual salary.

Working conditions are the major issue for most of the interns and residents who claim they often are on duty for more than 24 hours at a stretch and warn that patients may suffer if doctors are over-tired.

BECAUSE of the long hours, hospital doctors sometimes have the opportunity to sleep during their duty hours.

The American Medical Association said over 300 of the 700 teaching hospitals in the country have house staff groups. An AMA spokesman said he did not know what per cent of the doctors these groups represent or how many act as bargaining agents for their members.

The 3,000-member Committee of Interns and Residents in New York City struck 22 private and city-operated hospitals on Monday in the first official doctors' strike in the nation's history.

Interns at Freeman Hospital in Washington, D.C., walked off the job briefly last year, but the strike wasn't sanctioned by the housestaff association since the interns' group is not recognized by the NLRB.

The New York group reached agreement late Thursday with the League of Voluntary Hospitals. The settlement calls for the establishment of committees to work out schedules designed to provide the best possible patient care and allow for adequate rest for the doctors.

THE DOCTORS had demanded that they be required to work no more than 80 hours a week and no more than 15 hours at a time.

Salaries are at the center of a dispute that led to a walkout Monday in Vancouver and Victoria, British Columbia. The strike now involves residents and interns at seven teaching hospitals in the Canadian province. There are about 10 other hospitals in British Columbia.

Dr. Craig Beattie, president of the Professional Association of Residents and Interns, said that the British Columbia Health Association has refused to resume bargaining.

Beattie said negotiations in the wage dispute had been going on for five months. He said residents and interns work an average of 60 to 100 hours a week each and are demanding pay parity with interns in Ontario who earn $12,500 to $16,750 a year.

The British Columbia physicians' annual salary range is $8,000 to $12,000 and pay parity would mean a boost of up to 56 per cent in one year.

The health association has offered an 18 per cent increase, plus a 10 per cent cost of living boost over a one-year period.

Dr. John DeBlasi, president of the housestaff at the University of Colorado Medical Center, said his group is trying to gain recognition as an official bargaining unit for interns and residents.

He said a recent survey showed the average house officer worked 80 to 85 hours a week, with some doctors working up to 120 hours. Salaries start at $10,000 a year.

DeBlasi said the doctors' salaries were not keeping pace with inflation, but he said money was not the major issue. "We're not pushing for that as much as for better equipment and patient care."

He said the housestaff was working to avoid a strike, but said he supported the New York doctors and predicted that "within the next five years, if problems are not resolved in the West, a strike will occur in Denver and other hospitals..."

The Philadelphia Association of Interns and Residents also is seeking recognition as a bargaining agent. There has not been any talk of a strike. Salaries and schedules vary from hospital to hospital. At Temple University Hospital, interns and residents work as much as 110 hours a week for salaries ranging from $12,000 to $14,000.

Traces found in mummy

Modern ailments not so new

DETROIT (AP) — Studies of an ancient Egyptian mummy have disclosed that some of the health problems blamed on modern industrial society may have been around some 2,700 years ago.

In a scientific paper on their findings, a group of researchers from various fields reported evidence Friday that such arterial diseases as arteriosclerosis were common in ancient Egypt.

Although the cause of such diseases still are unknown, it "is clear that arterial disease was common ... in former times," they said.

"Whatever the cause, it is an ancient one, and not something that has appeared recently, such as the stress and strain of modern life or modern diet."

Among other findings from the series of tests conducted on the mummy — dubbed "Pum II," was evidence of silicosis of the lungs.

"Air pollution is not new," the scientists declared. "Ancient human remains from widely separated locales have contained carbon deposits in the lungs similar to those seen in Pum II."

The autopsy on the mummy, borrowed from the Philadelphia Art Museum, was performed in 1973 at Wayne State University here as part of a seminar on death and disease in ancient Egypt. Since then the well-preserved mummy has been subjected to study by pathologists, physiologists, anthropologists, radiologists and Egyptologists.

"A mummy can be a scientific treasure chest," the researchers explained, "but to unlock its secrets, a multidisciplinary approach is needed."

Their report said that the nature of diseases prevalent thousands of years ago was not only of academic interest. "In many instances the eradication of a disease may not be achieved until the way in which it evolved has been determined," it said.

The researchers noted that some carbon deposits found in ancient human remains "presumably resulted from inhaling smoke from fires." They said that carbon itself causes very little damage to lungs unless accompanied by such toxic substances such as silica.

"... Pulmonary silicosis is common in miners, quarry workers and potters and may produce considerable morbidity and mortality," the researchers noted.

"The hands of Pum II are not those of a manual worker," they said, "so his silicosis is more likely due to the inhaling of sand during the sand storms common in Egypt."

The researchers on the project were volunteers, donating their time because of interest in the subject. Heading the team were Drs. Aidan Cockburn of the Smithsonian Institution, Robin Barraco of Wayne State, Theodore Reymann of Detroit's Mt. Carmel Mercy Hospital and William Peck of the Detroit Institute of Arts.

Pacemaker recall upgraded

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The recall of some electronic heart pacemakers was upgraded to "life threatening" emergency status Friday by the Food and Drug Administration because of the difficulty in determining when the devices are about to fail.

The new warning involves pacemakers surgically implanted in about 50 persons across the country.

The FDA said the change in priority of the recall means it is more likely the devices will have to be replaced by surgery rather than simply being monitored by doctors.

The units were made by Vitatron Medical, in Dieren, Holland. They are being recalled nationally by Vitatron Medical Inc., of Boston.

The agency originally issued the warning Feb. 5 under a procedure in which the priority was less urgent, with the consequences not considered hazardous.

It said at that time it believed doctors would be able to tell if the batteries in the units were going bad, simply by occasionally checking on the patients.

But Friday it reclassified the affair into its top priority slot: an "emergency situation involving the removal from the market of products in which the consequences are immediate or long range, life threatening and involve a direct cause-effect relationship."

Dental firm told to deliver

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Health and welfare chief Mario Obledo threatened Friday to cancel a Medi-Cal contract with California Dental Services if CDS doesn't provide full denture services without additional state funds.

Obledo said that CDS should be able to provide false teeth to all Medi-Cal recipients who need them without getting additional state aid.

But he said he would be "pleasantly surprised" if CDS agreed to continue full denture service unless the state adds $2 million to the $67 million contract.

"WE HAVE been talking about it with them," he said. "But they are still insisting on $2 million. Everybody wants more money."

"What they are saying is give us $2 million more and we will provide the same service as last year," Obledo quoted CDS officials as saying.

But he said that CDS could probably make up the $2 million from funds saved when it cut a whole range of dental services in January while the Medi-Cal contract was being negotiated.

The Brown administration has been criticized for signing the CDS contract. Critics say it severely limits the number of Medi-Cal recipients who can obtain dentures.

Obledo said he had been told by aides that the state could provide CDS' service for less money.

CDS arranges for dental care for Medi-Cal recipients through private dentists.

Disorder perils Vietnam retreat

By RICHARD BLYSTONE

NHA TRANG, South Vietnam (AP) — Refugees and battered South Vietnamese troops fleeing toward coastal areas are bringing with them the danger of disorders and an anti-American backlash.

Only a few hundred have made it so far through gauntlets of North Vietnamese fire to the safety of this quiet seaside resort, but already occasional gunshots are heard on the streets. Soldiers glower at photographers trying to take their pictures. The U.S. consulate general has warned Americans to travel only in vehicles, only on main roads and only by day.

The bitterness is already ready evident in a sprawling refugee camp set up in a former Korean Army logistic base on the northern outskirts of Nha Trang. It was filled Friday with refugees from Ban Me Thuot, the provincial capital to the north which fell last week.

"Go and tell President Thieu that he must retake Ban Me Thuot or our families will die under the Communists," said one group of young civil servants who gathered around reporters and told them they have left the city only "because we thought we were just being evacuated temporarily."

"The government must go to liberate Ban Me Thuot," declared a 25-year-old land reform worker who left behind a total of 14 family members including his wife and children.

"If not, I cannot work with the government. I am not a military man, but if the government needs me, give me a gun and I will go and liberate Ban Me Thuot."

Although many Vietnamese distrust Americans and other foreigners, there have been no serious anti-American incidents for several years. The U.S. troop withdrawals left few Americans here as targets.

Some observers believe, however, that refugees might blame the loss of the provinces on the American pullout and lack of aid.

The only other area of anti-American feeling in political circles has come from Thieu's opponents, who claim he has been able to stay in power only because of Washington's backing.

Nha Trang, 200 miles northeast of Saigon, is one of many coastal towns where refugees from abandoned areas are seeking haven. Authorities say more than 50,000 refugees, including men, women and children, have been trapped behind North Vietnamese tanks northwest of Nha Trang and are trying to filter through to government lines.

One refugee said the Vietnamese Air Force was charging 50,000 piasters to take refugees from the forward government lines to Nha Trang.

A 55-year-old Montagnard tribesman, barefooted with a homemade machete tucked into his loin cloth, said many refugees were killed and wounded trying to escape.

Field reports said that the South Vietnamese 23rd Division, cut down 40 per cent or less by the battle for Ban Me Thuot, pulled back to headquarters about 10 miles east of Khanh Duong and about 70 miles northwest of Nha Trang.

Although field reports said the retreating government troops were bitter and angry, Associated Press correspondent Huynh Minh Trinh reported the units were orderly and morale and discipline appeared to be good.

Mail surveillance spanned 20 years

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A top postal official and a former CIA agent revealed Friday how the agencies teamed up over 20 years to illegally open and read the mail of Americans corresponding with persons in Communist countries.

William J. Cotter, the Postal Service's chief inspector, told a House subcommittee that from 1953 to 1973 — when he stopped the operation — the CIA worked with the Post Office in a mail surveillance program in New York City and San Francisco.

Cotter, who described the operation as illegal, told how CIA agents opened and photographed letters mailed to and from the Soviet Union, mainland China and Cuba.

Cotter's testimony, given Tuesday in executive session before the civil liberties subcommittee, was made public Friday, shortly before a former CIA agent told the panel he was briefed about the operation in 1958.

Dr. Mel Crain, a San Diego State University professor who left the CIA in 1959, said the FBI also was involved in the mail surveillance, and mail had been opened in New Orleans by intelligence agents.

"The letters were opened, reproduced, resealed, and sent on their way without interrupting mail flow or their opening in any way being detected," Crain testified.

Crain, who was deputy chief of the CIA's Operational Intelligence Research Branch, said all mail to and from the Soviet Union was opened, involving "hundreds and hundreds" of first class pieces.

Federal law prohibits any government agency from opening first class mail without a court order.

Crain said a CIA official told him the operation was "unconstitutional and illegal" but was "necessary to fulfill our mission" to protect national security.

Chairman Robert W.

Kastenmeier, D-Wis., said the activity was "in direct violation" of the law and announced he had written President Ford seeking assurances that it has been stopped.

Cotter said he first learned of the operation in the early 1950's when he was a CIA agent, and tried several times to halt the operation after becoming postal inspector in 1969.

He said he advised CIA Director Richard Helms in 1971 to obtain "higher approval ... or discontinue the project."

Three days later Cotter said he was called by Postmaster General Winston Blount and told to "carry on with the project."

He said postmasters going back to Arthur Summerfield in the Eisenhower administration knew something about the program in various degrees.

"It must not continue," Cotter said, "and it must not recur. The 'mail must go through' all right, but unopened by spooks."

TAX CUT

trols from oil and natural gas. Opponents contended the Gravel proposal would raise fuel bills by $40 billion a year.

HERE ARE major provisions of the Senate bill:

— A $10-billion rebate of 1974 individual income taxes, with almost every family assured a minimum $120 check up to a $240 maximum. The checks would go out in May.

— An additional "earned-income credit" totaling $1.7 billion for working families under the $8,000 gross-income level. This would assure a 10-per-cent credit, up to $400, of 1975 taxable income. The effect is to refund the Social Security taxes paid by families too poor to pay much income tax but who still must contribute to the retirement system.

— An across-the-board 4 per cent cut in the tax rate on the first $4,000 of taxable income. Costing $2 billion, this would provide a tax cut of at least $40 for most families in 1975 and 1976.

— A $100 payment this year to every person who receives a Social Security or railroad-retirement-system check. This would cost about $3 billion.

— An optional $200-person credit against taxes instead of the current $750-per-person exemption. This option would be available to all taxpayers but would benefit mainly large families that itemize deductions. The cost is estimated at $6.1 billion for 1975.

— A tax credit for any person who buys a new home as a principal residence between March 13 and Dec. 31 this year. The credit would equal 5 per cent of the home's purchase price, up to a maximum credit of $2,000. Thus, a person buying a $20,000 home could subtract $1,000 from his tax bill next year. Buying a home worth $40,000 or more would reduce taxes by $2,000.

— Tax cuts for business totaling $7.5 billion this year, including the $500-million special break for those firms that lost money in prior years. The bulk of the reduction would come through raising the amount of tax credit available to businesses for buying new equipment.

— Repeal of the federal excise tax on trucks and buses, reducing federal revenues by $700 million while lowering the price of such equipment.

Before a final vote could occur, the Senate had to dispose of dozens of amendments that would provide special tax breaks to one or more classes of taxpayers.

REDS PUSH ATTACK ON HUE

retreating from the Central Highlands, littering the roadside with hundreds of bodies. Bloodstained survivors wept as they told of the events.

South Vietnamese newsman Nguyen Tu, with the refugees, said hundreds of the refugees fled into the jungles and that South Vietnamese helicopters picked them off a hilltop three miles from the Central Highlands town of Cheo Redo and flew them to Tuy Hoa on the coast.

South Vietnamese marines blew up a wooden timber bridge over the My Chanh River, 21 miles north of Hue to hold back Communist tanks, and dug into the river banks to fight a rear-guard battle to protect the hundreds of thousands of fleeing refugees. The river was the farthest penetration of North Vietnamese troops in the big Easter offensive of 1972.

Communist gunners slammed 50 rounds of artillery and rocket fire into Hue's suburban airport Friday, killing more than 10 refugees, and blasted Hue's military bases at Phu Bai and Hoa My with 130mm artillery and 122mm rocket fire, field reports said.

Provinces now controlled entirely by Communist forces include Quang Tri in the far north; Pleiku, Kontum, Darlac, and Phu Bon in the highlands; Phuoc Long, 75 miles north of Saigon and Binh Long, 66 miles north of the capital.

Those provinces now threatened or being evacuated include Thua Thien, with its capital of Hue; the three highlands provinces of Lam Dong, Quang Duc, and Tuyen Duc, which surrounds DaLat; Quang Ngai, 320 miles north of Saigon; Tay Ninh, 55 miles northwest of Saigon, and the Mekong Delta province of Kien Giang, 125 miles southwest of Saigon.

South Vietnamese President Nguyen Van Thieu ordered his government to launch an emergency program to shelter and resettle the flood of an estimated one million refugees on the Central Coast in the Nha Trang and Tuy Hoa areas and in the Danang region.

Field reports said nearly 80 per cent of Hue's population of 300,000 had hit the road south to Danang — and an estimated 40,000 to 50,000 vehicles of all types were packed bumper-to-bumper the full length of the tortuous two-lane Highway 1, which snakes through a mountain range and the Hai Van Pass before coming out on the coastal plains at Da Nang.

At Hue's port area of Thuan An some 40,000 refugees were waiting for boats to carry them south to safety.

A compilation of government war reports Friday showed that in three weeks of the offensive South Vietnam has lost about one-third of its territory, a hunk of land roughly twice the size of Belgium.

In Washington, administration sources said Hue could still be defended by the crack South Vietnamese 1st Division. The sources said 90 per cent of the South Vietnamese population is still residing in territory controlled by the government in spite of the evacuations.

State Department spokesman Robert L. Funseth called the Communist offensive a "blatant violation" of the 1973 Paris peace agreement and said, "The country-wide invasion and general offensive has now reached a level of intensity at least equal to the 1968 Tet and the 1972 Easter offensive in terms of the forces involved, the targets attacked, and the threat it represents."

PEACE PACT VOIDED

released Jan. 11 diplomatic note which the U.S. had sent to signatories of the peace agreement accusing North Vietnam of "flagrant violation" of the accords.

The Paris peace accords established a cease-fire and limited the amount of aid that the U.S. could supply to South Vietnam and the number of troops and supplies that North Vietnam could bring into South Vietnam to one-to-one replacements of what was already there.

THE accords also provided for an exchange of war prisoners, which resulted in the freeing of several hundred American POWs held by North Vietnam and called for an eventual vote by the people of South Vietnam on possible reunification with North Vietnam.

While the accord was being negotiated, the U.S. withdrew all its forces from South Vietnam.

U.S. officials also have reversed their estimates of a week ago and concede that the current North Vietnamese offensive is dealing a heavy blow to South Vietnam's military position.

State Department press officer Robert Funseth said Friday that the North Vietnamese army has its "largest force ever" in South Vietnam.

The current offensive now equals in intensity the major 1968 and 1972 Communist offensives. Funseth said. He estimated that North Vietnam has 320,000 troops in South Vietnam, 100,000 more than in January 1973 when the Paris peace accords were signed.

South Vietnam has abandoned eight provinces and was threatened with the loss of another as the result of heavy fighting in that country's Central Highlands area.

MOST U.S. analysts said South Vietnamese President Nguyen Van Thieu probably made the right move to concentrate his forces to defend the most populous and rice productive areas of the country, principally the Saigon region and the delta to the south.

Sen. Charles McC. Mathias, R-Md., rejected a statement Thursday by Secretary of Defense James R. Schlesinger that South Vietnam's troubles were a result of "niggardly" funding by Congress.

Mathias said that as of Feb. 28, only $158.4 million of the $700 million appropriated by Congress for South Vietnamese military aid for the fiscal year ending June 30 had been spent.

He said $361.1 million was obligated and still in the supply pipeline and another $178.5 million had not been obligated.

"It is clearly illogical to blame Congress when in fact these hundreds of millions of dollars were available and not drawn upon when the administration asked for a $300 million supplemental appropriation," Mathias said.

Frisbees fight VD

TALLAHASSEE (AP) — Imprinted frisbees and aerial advertising will be used by state health officials in a campaign against venereal disease aimed at some 200,000 college students arriving in Florida for spring breaks.

The two-week "Prevent VD" campaign begins Monday.

"Our concern is that young people infected with VD either prior to coming here or after arriving may spread it to others," said Dr. Clifford Cole, head of the state VD control program.

"All the elements are present for the very rapid spread of VD in a festive atmosphere which is conducive to increased sexual activity," he said Friday.

Nearly 100,000 young people are expected to spend their time off from classes in the Daytona Beach area, where the most extensive anti-VD program is planned.

SS Catalina lawsuit-lien dispute rages on

Two special meetings to discuss the substance and details of a $160,000 lawsuit and a $32,000 lien against the SS Catalina and its operators began Friday and were continued until today by Los Angeles Harbor Commissioners in San Pedro.

The sessions appeared to be an attempt to resolve the latest controversy over the "Big White Steamer" whose financial and geographical futures have become clouded issues in recent months.

Since owner Jack Stanaland announced the proposed sale of the ship to an Arabian last October there has been less than smooth sailing for either the ship or the MGRS Company which Stanaland heads.

Public outcry at the possible departure of the elegant old steamer prompted several abortive moves by Avalon city officials to keep it in its accustomed summer season shuttle between the mainland and Catalina Island.

However, Stanaland subsequently confirmed that the ship had been sold, declining to identify the buyer. This month he announced that 1975 would be the last season the ship would operate. In earlier statements he blamed the city of Avalon for demanding changed docking procedure which would cost his company an estimated $150,000 in alterations, and also said his $50,000 annual docking fees in San Pedro were due to rise.

On Friday, March 7, the Los Angeles Harbor Department slapped a $32,644 lien against the ship, claiming that operators owe $16,317 in back dockage charges for the last five months of 1974. (The department can claim double damages under terms of the port tariff agreement and it can sell the vessel to satisfy its claims, according to Deputy Los Angeles City Attorney Frank Wagner who filed the action.)

Less than a week later the Harbor Department filed a $160,314 lawsuit against Catalina Terminals, Inc., and its president, Stanaland, for back rent, dockage fees, lease assignment and other miscellaneous charges.

Damages sought are double what the company allegedly owes the department and are based on calculations by the department's chief accounting officer, Emmanuel Cattolica. The suit is based in part on allegedly falsified parking lot receipts and that the terminal operators owe the department $23,467 in unreported parking receipts between September, 1973 and September, 1974.

Wagner also said the auditors made a recent four day spot check of the terminal parking lot where they counted 1,180 cars as opposed to the 501 reported by the company.

To add to the financial woes faced by Stanaland's companies, there is an additional charge dating from the day a federal court granted the lien. That is the $140 a day for the U.S. Marshal's 24-hour occupation aboard the ship, as ordered by the department. That charge will become a further lien against the ship, according to Wagner.

However, on Thursday, a mitigating factor for Stanaland's companies emerged from the Los Angeles City Council. Council President John S. Gibson, who represents the harbor area, urged the department to limit assessment of dockage fees to the summer tourist season and asked the department to negotiate with the owners to reach a more equitable method of charging dockage in the future.

In reply, Assistant City Attorney Jack L. Wells said harbor department staff members have been meeting almost everyday with the ship's owners.

"I believe something can be worked out, but so far we have no definite proposal to take to the commissioners," he said Friday.

However, the first of the two meetings got off on schedule at 3 p.m. Friday and the second was scheduled for 10 a.m. today.

Stanaland, as in the past, continued to be unavailable for comment.

LBSU birthday celebrated with drive for funds

By WALT MURRAY
Staff Writer

Long Beach State University is celebrating its 25th anniversary by asking for money.

The college has joined long-established public universities like Berkeley and Michigan in asking alumni, parents and staff for donations to augment what it gets from the state.

State universities at Los Angeles and Northridge began seeking private donations last year.

"We're recognizing that state universities are never going to get the state funding we'd hoped for," said Ric Opalka, director of alumni programs at the college.

"There's so much competition for tax money nowadays that it's time to look for private donations."

Private universities like USC are increasingly joining the competition for tax money, Opalka noted.

Another reason for opening the fund drive now is that LBSU has aged enough to make such drives practical.

"Now that we're 25 years old, we have a significant number of graduates who are established enough to think about contributing," he said. "We're beginning to get second generation students."

Quality of university programs has also increased in recent years, Opalka said.

"Until six or seven years ago, students came here for geographic convenience, but now they enroll for our programs."

Letters soliciting donations for the college's Fund for Excellence have gone out to almost half the university's 59,000 graduates and to parents of present students.

Donors can mark their contributions for specific academic areas, such as the school of business or the department of journalism, or for more general areas such as concerts or art exhibits.

Opalka said that distribution of money for nonspecific areas would be determined by the board of directors of the LBSU Alumni Association, which is conducting the fund drive. The board will request proposals on how the money is to be used from throughout the campus.

The 25-member alumni board is elected by active members of the association, he said.

Goal of the drive is to collect $100,000 in a year and a half.

Openings available for golf lessons

A few openings remain in four adult golf classes, one scheduled for evenings, but prompt response in registering is necessary to assure a place, officials of the sponsoring Long Beach Recreation Department said Friday.

All four of the classes will meet one day a week for eight weeks, and all will be taught by George Willard of the department staff.

Beginning classes will be offered Mondays from 10 to 11:30 a.m. at El Dorado Park and Wednesdays from 1 to 2:30 p.m. at Whaley Park. Intermediate classes will be given Mondays from 1:30 to 4 p.m. at the Recreation Park 9-Hole Course and Tuesdays from 6:30 to 9 p.m. at Heartwell Golf Park.

The fee for beginning classes will be $10 for eight lessons. For intermediate classes, the fee will be $13, plus greens fees of $1.25 per day at Recreation Park and $1.75 per day at Heartwell Golf Park. Classes will begin the week of March 31.

Beginning students are required to furnish three plastic golf balls for class use, and should bring either a 5, 6 or 7 iron to the first class session.

Registration forms and checks or money orders, made payable to the Long Beach Recreation Commission, should be sent to the Registration Center, 5117 E. Colorado St., Long Beach, 90814. Additional information may be obtained from the Recreation Department's sports office.

A thousand to fly their kites today

More than 1,000 kite flyers, both young and old, are expected to take part in the 49th annual Long Beach Kite Festival today at 11 a.m. on the beach at the foot of Junipero Avenue.

Although there are a number of competitive events, people are invited to come down and just fly a kite, or watch others fly them, according to Maria Sharpe, special activities supervisor for the sponsoring Recreation Department.

Among the spectator events is a "balloon-busting" contest at 1 p.m. A cluster of 30 balloons is tied atop a 20-foot pole, and two-member teams compete to see which can pop the most in a five-minute period with fighter kites, which have a glass-encrusted string, Mrs. Sharpe explained.

Judging of kites for design will take place from 11 a.m. to noon. Awards will go to kites best typifying the categories of Togetherness, Signs of the Times, Brotherhood, Man's Best Friend, Inter-community Life, Family and Space Galaxy.

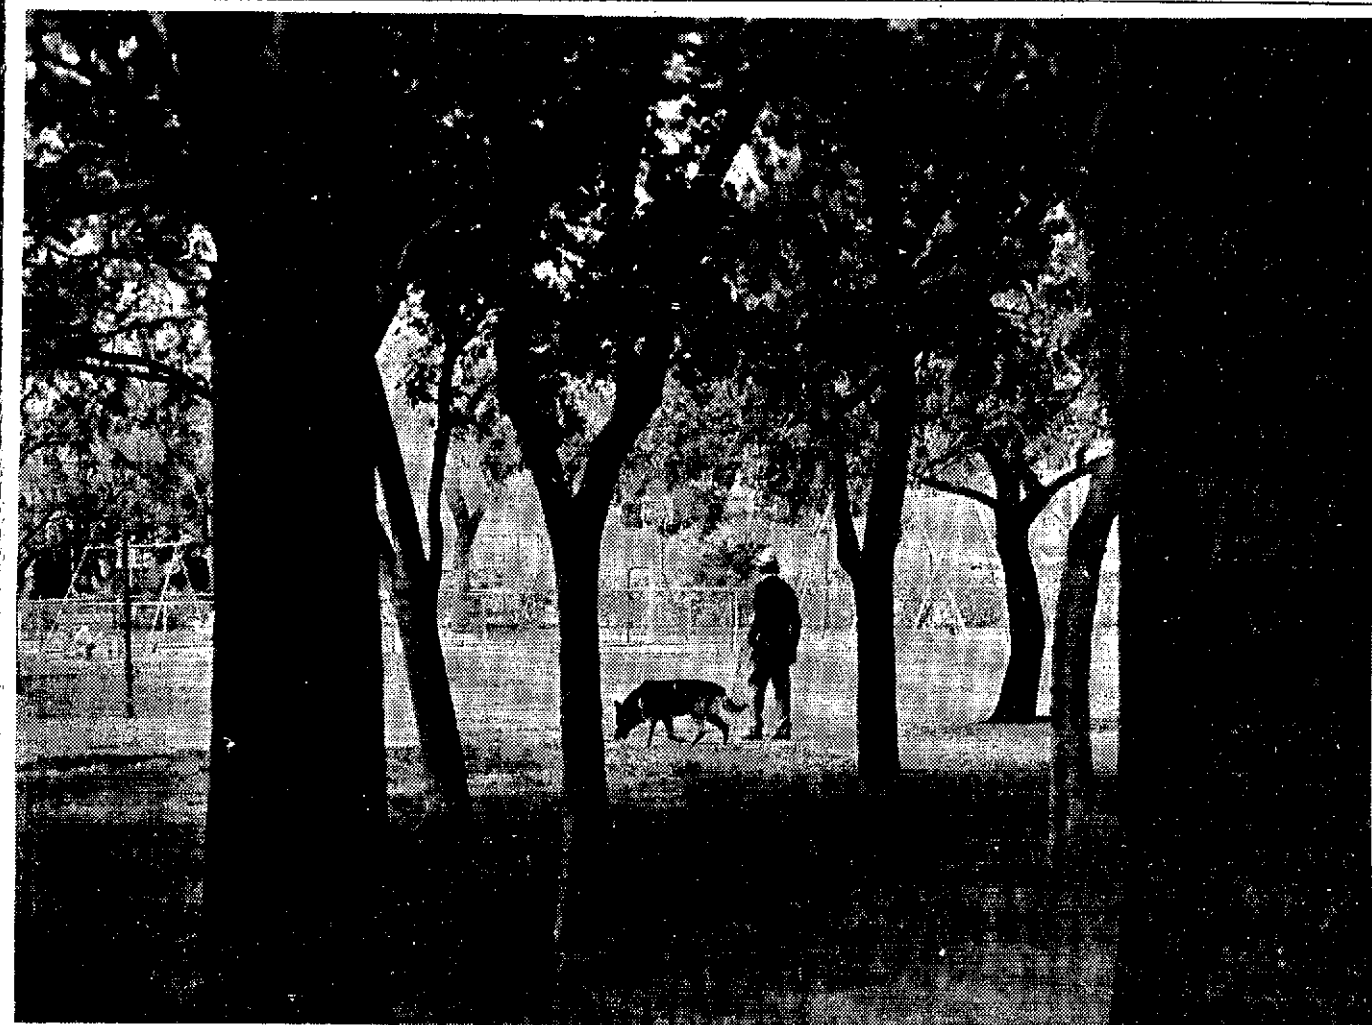

For the first time this year, there will be a special category for senior citizens. It is designated Senior Views, Mrs. Sharpe said.

Opening ceremonies will be held at noon, followed at 12:30 p.m. by individual contests, open to all, in such categories as the kite with the longest tail, funniest kite and steadiest flyer. There also will be sack races and sand modeling.

Contests for the highest flying kite, within a five-minute period, will be held for children and adults, starting at 2 p.m.

Awards will be presented at 2:30 p.m., and will be followed by a reception in the Bixby Park clubhouse for invited kite enthusiasts, including Bob Ingraham, president of the American Kite Association. During the past few weeks, preliminary contests were held at more than 60 schools and city playgrounds, and winners will take part in the all-city event today.

Awards for the preliminary contests and trophies for today's Kite Festival were provided by the Long Beach Rotary Club.

Springtime stroll in the park

For lovers of Spring, Friday ushered in the season of flowers and greenery with blue skies and comfortable, but slightly cool, Southland temperatures in the low 60s. Independent, Press-Telegram staff photographer Bob Shumway captured this view of the changing seasons as a man and his dog walk out of the shadows of winter and into the sunlit expanse of green grass at Lakewood's Pan American park.

To live in desert L.B. cameraman retires

JOHN W. NEAGLE

Photos by John W. Neagle, a familiar credit line appearing under Long Beach pictures for more than 25 years, will rarely—if ever—be seen again.

Neagle, a photographer who helped focus the attention of the world on the Queen Mary, the city and many of its personages, slipped off to the desert last month, retiring to a ghost town where he plans to work on his house, read and do a little prospecting.

"He didn't want a lunch, a dinner, a party or an announcement. So, that's the way it was," his boss, Bob Lichtenhan, general manager of the Long Beach Convention and News Bureau, said.

Before he came to Long Beach in 1950, Neagle worked for such newspapers as the Des Moines (Iowa) Register, the Des Moines Tribune and the Knoxville (Tenn.) Enterprise.

Here he was employed by the Long Beach Independent, the Independent, Press-Telegram, and the news bureau.

In the California-Nevada Associated Press news photo contest of 1958, he placed first and won two honorable mentions in the features division and placed first in the sports category.

He chose Randsburg, a community in the Mojave desert about 60 miles northeast of Barstow for retirement. His wife, Esther, is with him.

"Randsburg is a ghost town," said Neagle's son, John Jr., a Long Beach resident.

"It's near Johannesburg and Red Mountain, and between them they've got one phone and about 400 people."

Does his father plan any desert photographic work?

"No," his son said. "He told me he had been doing it for 50 years and that the end had come."

"Even the prospecting and the work on the house were mother's ideas," the younger Neagle said. "What Dad likes to do is read."

Orange County bribery case gag order set

A Santa Ana Superior Court judge Friday reluctantly issued a gag order against prosecutors in the case of two men indicted for bribery.

Judge Everett W. Dickey at first refused the request by defense counsel for Orange County's chief deputy assessor George Upton, 54, to bar prosecutors from giving the press any information on the case.

But Prosecutor Joe Heneghan said he didn't object to being gagged, so Dickey agreed to issue the order.

Upton was accused of three counts of bribery, involving his alleged acceptance of less than $900 worth of electronics gear for his boat, in return for underassessing the Radio Shack warehouse in Garden Grove. The warehouse supplies Radio Shack stores throughout the Southland.

James Buxton, vice president of the Tandy Corp., owners of the electronics firm, was indicted on three counts of giving bribes. His lawyer did not join in the defense motion to gag the prosecution.

Energy legislation said near

By RALPH HINMAN Jr.
Staff Writer

Compromise legislation designed to lessen U.S. dependence on foreign oil sources should be hammered out this spring in Congress and reach President Ford by July 1, a ranking federal energy official predicted Friday in Long Beach.

But Roger W. Sant, a 43-year-old native Southern Californian, stopped short of predicting the exact form this coming compromise will take.

Speaking to an audience of 500 at a Long Beach Chamber of Commerce-sponsored meeting in Golden Sails Convention Center, he indicated his belief that while World War II-style rationing would not be included, a consumption-discouraging direct tax on gasoline "remains a very live possibility."

"The new facts of energy life mean that our fuels, including gasoline, will cost more," he said.

Sant, assistant federal energy administrator for conservation and environment, was assigned only Thursday to substitute for his boss, energy administrator Frank Zarb. Zarb reportedly remained in Washington to appear with the President at several national news conferences.

The Newport Beach native, who earned degrees from Brigham Young University and Harvard Business School, used Zarb's prepared text while often ad-libbing. He early established a mood of urgency by noting that in 1977—if present trends continue—American gas stations might well post signs indicating that out of every dollar spent there, 40 cents go to foreign energy sources.

"That means Arab sources," he explained.

Sant declared that the need for "energy action remains critical for the nation since domestic production continues to decline and our dependence on imported petroleum supplies continues to increase."

As a result, he continued, "our national wealth, national defense and credibility in international affairs are imperiled."

Two clear courses minimizing this dangerous trend are available: "energy conservation" and "increased development of our abundant domestic energy potential—fossil fuels and new sources such as nuclear fusion and solar energy," the Washington official said.

Sant, continuing from Zarb's text, said:

"We can progressively reduce our dependence and reach a point, by 1985, where we can supply our own energy needs without being vulnerable to foreign actions."

During a question-and-answer session later, he declared that offshore oil drilling is required "in order to make the (energy) equation balance out by 1985." Oil from such presently controversial sources might eliminate the need for building additional nuclear or coal-fired electric generating plants.

Sant, a conservation specialist, stressed that "the administration's fuel program is balanced between environmental and energy issues." A strict conservation policy that "conditions Americans to use less energy and to use energy wisely" is an administration goal, he said.

Discussing possible higher gasoline prices, Sant said, "The Ford administration believes the American people would prefer to pay more for higher-priced fuel that is available than to wait in line for fuel that, because of artificially suppressed prices or government-sponsored shortage, has run out before they reach the pump."

A possible $30 million collected through import fees, excise taxes or taxes on windfall profits would be returned to consumers, he said, maintaining or even increasing middle and low-income purchasing power.

GARDENING

Delicate iris

By JOE LITTLEFIELD

It's just about time to closely study the bearded iris that are beginning to "come into their own" - burgeoning forth into lovely colorful flowers.

Check on the named varieties favored then order the rhizomes (dry roots) from local nursery or iris specialists and plant out in sunny or mostly sunny garden areas.

Some fewer nurseries may have them in containers available to set out in the garden.

Many of the iris are spring bloomers with perhaps fewer that are re-blooming. The rebloomers flower again the same year.

WHILE lecturing to the Southern California Iris Society earlier this year, I sparked a kindred soul, Marvin Harbert, when favoring the planting of re-blooming iris.

He was so interested and enthusiastic about the repeat bloomers that I asked him to jot down his thoughts about them.

Here's Harbert's reply ... "Not too many years ago, the bearded iris, (grandma called them "flags"), bloomed for us three or four weeks in the spring.

"A few growers started experimental hybridizing to develop those that would bloom in the fall. Most of these first introductions were dwarf or medians, and of a limited color range.

As more selective breeding developed, so did the flowers. This infuriated some of the purists to the extent that they would grab a hoe and chop out any plant that was precocious enough to send up a flowering stalk in the fall, saying 'iris were meant to bloom only in the spring!'

"FORTUNATELY, the more progressive growers did not hold to this theory. They selected the strongest plants showing re-blooming tendencies for use as parents, and began developing a line of tall Bearded Iris that were dependable re-bloomers.

"Growers in colder areas tried for those that would give bloom before the early frosts. Those in California and warmer areas developed four-season bloomers, or 'ever-bloomers'. Because of their efforts, mostly during the last 10 years, we now have irises in bloom at the same time we have our roses (which was also a once-only bloomer).

THANKS to these dedicated growers, our iris societies now have spring, summer, fall, and winter shows displaying beautiful blossoms of award-winning quality the year round.

"Unfortunately, some of our largest growers who publish the big, beautiful color catalogues, still seem to go along with the 'man with the hoe', refusing even to mention irises that will re-bloom. Readers who would like a list of quality irises that re-bloom and where they may be found, can send a stamped self-addressed envelope to Marv Harbert,

IRIS ... grandma called them 'flags'

1623 N. Dillon St., Los Angeles, Calif. 90026."

We appreciated Marvin Harbert's helpful information and offer of where to find the re-bloomers.

BEARDED iris aren't called bulb plants but rhizomatous or rhizomes, having a thick horizontal root stock with roots growing on the underside. Dahlias on the other hand (though called bulbs, actually are called roots by dahlia hobbyists. They are obtainable at nurseries, also at local Dahlia Societies that hold "dahlia root auctions."

Gardener definitely will find more choicer and wider selection of unusual varieties at one of these dahlia auctions. Watch your newspaper for a notice when a dahlia society has one this spring.

Jobs for gardeners

Plant dahlia roots in a sunny flower bed area where there's some air circulation. Dahlias are planted out one of two ways.

The whole area soil is prepared, or the individual holes are prepared. The quickest method is the hole-soil preparation method because there is no need of waiting for the prepared soil to mellow before setting out the roots. Make holes at least 10 inches deep by eight inches wide. Dry soil hole is filled with water a half hour in advance of planting.

Dahlia root is planted after water has disappeared into the soil.

Bone meal or a flower-fruit fertilizer is mixed in the hole, then add four inches of organic amendment followed by the same amount of soil (dug from the hole) over the organic material then mixed together and firmed.

The root is placed in the hole on a downward slant with the "eye" bud facing up. Stake is placed beside the root, soil filled to within two inches of ground level and watered well.

BIG 3 TRANSPLANT TIPS

Since tomatoes, peppers and cabbage are the most widely-grown vegetables in America, home gardeners should consider the individual likes and dislikes of these three when buying transplants.

Cabbage is hardy and will tolerate light frosts. Unlike tomatoes and peppers which are tender plants, cabbage can be planted about four weeks before the last frost date in any given area. Healthy transplants can be purchased from bedding plant outlets. They should be spaced 1½ feet apart in a row. Miniature heads are not yet formed when cabbage is bought as a bedding plant. Heads appear after the plants are well established in the garden. Even so, healthy cabbage transplants can cut six weeks from the growing time.

Peppers and tomatoes cannot tolerate frost and so should not be set out as transplants until after the last frost date in any area. Tomatoes should be set out with several inches of stem buried below ground. The stem will produce additional roots and create a healthier plant.

MARCH 24-30, 1975

March is neither winter nor spring.

Watch out for tornadoes now ... Jim Thorpe died March 28, 1933 ... Full moon March 27 ... Skunk cabbage flowering now ... Average length of days for the week, 12 hours, 29 minutes ... Eiffel Tower opened March 30, 1889 ... Ore shipping season on Great Lakes begins this week ... Ponce de Leon discovered Florida, March 27, 1513 ... The young are slaves to novelty, the old to custom.

Ask the Old Farmer: Two questions: 1) Why did our pioneers cover their bridges? 2) How did the expression "deaf as a haddock" originate? R. M., Phoenix.

Bridges were covered for the same reason that women wear petticoats — to protect the underpinning. "Deaf as an add" comes out of the Scriptures. Haddock doesn't belong at all.

Home Hint: When your child has outgrown it, put the three-tooled dish next to your sink to hold a bar of soap, a steel wool pad, and a nylon net pot.

Alice Wagenhals will be the horticulture speaker, and American Airlines' Kiwi Club will show slides of beautiful gardens around the world.

Artichokes are really flower buds

The artichoke or cynara scolymus to botanists, is generally credited as a remote relative of the Syrian thistle. They grow on stalks of busy plants three or four feet high.

Each artichoke is really a large flower bud, covered with thick green petals. If unpicked, they will bloom into a big blue flower.

Gourmets say artichokes have a delicate, sweet, nutty taste. Health food advocates say they are rich in iron, mineral salts, and iodine and are good for obesity, halitosis, and excessive acidity.

Speedup in offshore oil urged

BEVERLY HILLS (AP) — The chairman of Standard Oil Co. of California said Friday it is in America's best interests to step up offshore oil drilling activities.

J. J. Haynes of Standard said an immediate effort should begin to tap an estimated 13 billion barrels of oil lying off the Southern California coast.

Those views were disputed by oceanographer Jacques-Yves Cousteau, Mayor Tom Bradley of Los Angeles and Gov. Brendan Byrne of New Jersey, who called for a go-slow approach to the issue.

THEY appeared together in a panel discussion at a conference on offshore oil drilling. The discussion weighed the costs and benefits of drilling.

If the United States is to become energy self-sufficient, the offshore reserves seem a likely place to drill. But many coastal states and communities don't want oil rigs erected off their beaches for fear that a future spill, such as the 1969 blowout in the Santa Barbara Channel, might occur.

"We support good, sound environmental impact statements," said Haynes. "The only thing that disturbs us is that this country is becoming more dependent on foreign oil every day and, in our judgment, we'd be irresponsible if we didn't urge the federal government and urge the state governments to get on with this thing."

WHEN YOU get right down to it, the alternative in the short term is to import more foreign oil, which is expensive.

Haynes made his comments in an interview prior to the panel discussion at the second day of the conference at the Beverly Hilton Hotel.

The conference was sponsored by the National Energy Project of the American Enterprise Institute for Public Policy Research.

Mayor Bradley said he disagreed with Haynes' contention that there should be no delay in expanding offshore drilling.

THE FACT that the federal government delayed this long is no justification, in my mind, that they now proceed pell mell without adequate protection, without adequate information, without spelling out what its national energy policy is," the mayor said.

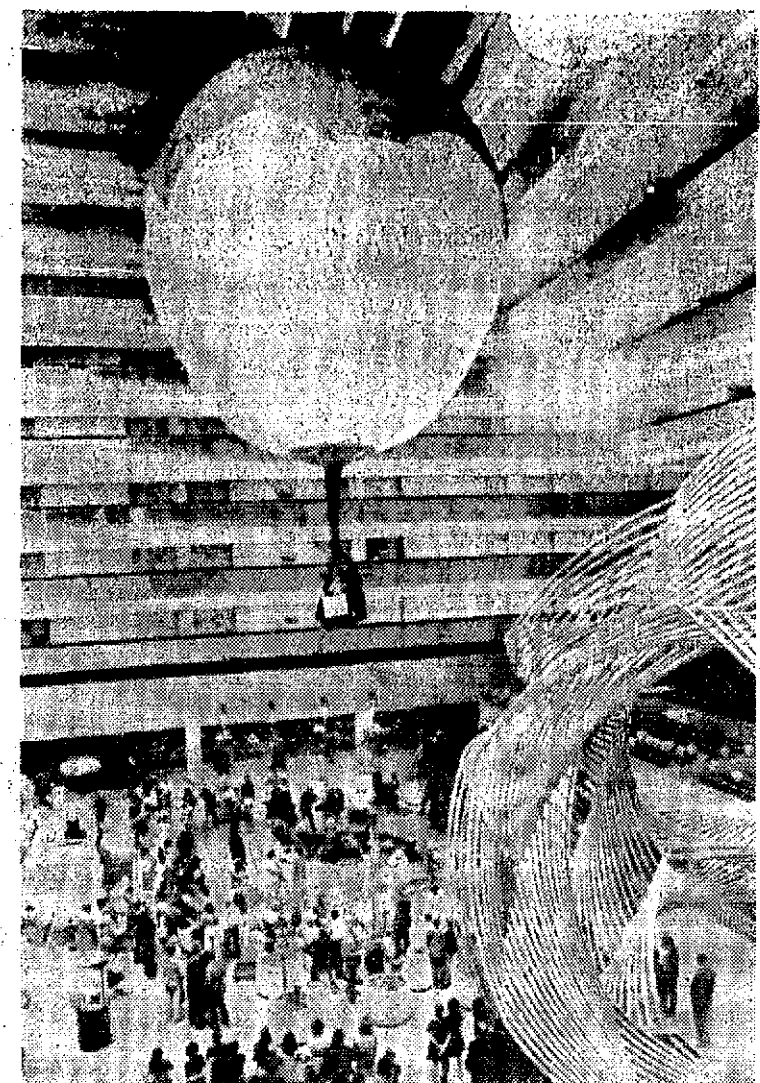

Bradley said he wants the National Academy of Sciences to launch an independent study into the environmental impact of offshore drilling along Southern California's coastline. The Interior Department is still studying the request.

2 plead innocent in L.B. heroin case

A Wilmington market owner and a Long Beach garage operator Friday pleaded innocent to charges stemming from a raid on what police termed "the Long Beach Connection"—a large-scale heroin delivery ring.

With Spanish interpreter Linda Helgeson translating proceedings of their arraignments, Felipe Quinteros and Francisco Torres entered their pleas before Long Beach Superior Court Judge Elsworth M. Beam.

Quinteros, 46-year-old owner of La Mexicana Market, 1115 E. L St., and Torres, 32, owner of he G & G Body Works, 4800 Long Beach Blvd., each face one count of possessing heroin for sale.

Glomar firm files appeal in NLRB labor judgment

By JACK BALDWIN
Maritime Editor

Operators of the ship the CIA used to raise part of a sunken Russian submarine are appealing a National Labor Relations Board (NLRB) ruling which found them guilty of unfair labor practices, a union lawyer said Friday.

Attorney Lester Ostrov said the ship's operators, Global Marine Development Corp., fired the whole 12-man engine room crew of the Glomar Explorer on Oct. 1, 1973.

The crewmen were fired after they refused the company's demand that they not ask to be represented by the Marine Engineers' Benevolent Association, the attorney said.

OSTROV'S firm, Bodle, Fogel, Julber, Reinhardt and Rothschild of Los Angeles, represents the maritime union.

"The company promised the men several benefits and said that they would have to remain nonunion or get off the ship," Ostrov said.

The union filed charges, and on Oct. 2, 1974 the NLRB found Global Marine Development guilty of unfair labor practices, the lawyer said.

He said the NLRB ordered the company to rehire the men and pay them back wages from the date they were fired.

Now, Ostrov said, the company has appealed the case to the Ninth District Court of Appeals.

ENGINEERS on the ship, which has been described as an ocean mining vessel, complained that contrary to custom they had to get the approval of the mining superintendent on board before they could do any work or make any changes in the engine room.

"The mining engineer frequently reversed the decisions of the chief engineer," Ostrov said. "The matter has many unusual aspects, but if the efficiency of the mission was as inefficient as the labor relations fiasco, then it is a frightening story."

AT THE time they were fired, none of the engine room crewmen knew of the CIA's then-secret effort to recover a Soviet submarine which sank about 750 miles northeast of Hawaii, the lawyer said.

Ostrov said he found it "shocking" that in spite of the "millions of dollars" of government money invested in the vessel, its operators would take an antunion stance and pay below-scale wages.

Quake experts to tour line of faults, assess hazards

PASADENA (AP) — The San Andreas Fault will be given an inspection Saturday by about 50 geologists who hope to learn more about the risks of building along an earthquake fault zone.

The scientists plan to trace the fault line by foot and by bus during a three-day tour from Mecca Hills near the Salton Sea to Frazier Park in the Los Padres National Forest south of Bakersfield.

Dr. Perry Ehlig, Cal State Los Angeles professor of geology, said, "There is not full agreement as to the degree of displacement along the fault. This trip should cement the divergent opinions."

Ehlig said the group will look at houses near the main fault line, including the Oak Glen area near Beaumont.

"If a quake hits the Oak Glen area, many homes are likely to experience severe damage because of the construction on steep slopes and soft ground within the fault zone," Ehlig said.

He said there has been considerable construction along the San Andreas and the San Jacinto faults, and the group plans to take a close look at the buildings.

"We will question the types of structures that should be permitted along faults, what precautions are needed and what the risk is to life and property," Ehlig said.

The scientists are in town to attend the annual meeting of the Geological Society of America.

Gradual upturn in economy predicted

Miami — Alvah H. Chapman Jr., president of Knight-Ridder Newspapers, Inc., has told the company's Board of Directors that "the results of the first two months of the year have confirmed our belief that economic conditions would lead us to a down first quarter and probably a down first half."

He pointed out that most of the company's 33 daily newspapers had suffered losses in classified advertising and that retail advertising had been sluggish. In addition, the first quarter was impacted by a three-day wildcat strike at the company's Philadelphia newspapers.

Chapman noted that any upturn in the economy would be cause for optimism concerning the full year's results. He added that while he could not accurately forecast when the national economy would start improving, declining interest rates, slowing inflation, proposed tax cuts and other stimulative government action would certainly play a major role in restoring public confidence and in getting the economy moving again.

Life can begin again Art as evangelism

"CHRIST" by S. M. Blackburn
Favorite of congregation

By MARK CLUTTER

"Even old trees — even they are transplanted, and they take root in a new place." — Alexander Solzhenitsyn, Russian author, speaking of his exile.

"Life can begin again — and art can be a potent force in human renewal," says the Rev. Galal Gough, minister of the First United Methodist Church, Pacific Avenue and Fifth Street.

The church is having a major art exhibition which will close after Easter. The theme is "Life Can Begin Again." Eighty-one works of art are on display in the nave and the narthex. The open event was judged by Dr. Thomas Ferreira, chairman of the art department at LBSU. They were chosen from 134 works submitted. This is the first of a series of Lenten Art Festivals at the church.

Gough sees art as a means of evangelism, drawing the congregation, artists and the general public into sharper awareness of spiritual problems and their solutions.

Gough said: "Because of the disasters of war, famine and environmental destruction in our world and the crucial relevance of hope for human beings everywhere today, we feel that the theme — 'Life Can Begin Again' — is of major importance. I feel that the artists in their various styles have expressed it well. The purpose of the festival was to encourage artists to wrestle with timeless and eternal themes and to create a provocative dialog between painter and parishioner."

The reaction of the congregation was interesting, he said. Many members, of course, are not sophisticated in art, and the works represent all styles including some that are quite avant garde. They were asked to vote on their favorites. A traditional portrait of Christ was the winner. The picture won an honorable mention in the judging.

"Everyone found some works they could relate to," Gough said.

Long Beach has an inferiority complex toward art, Gough believes.

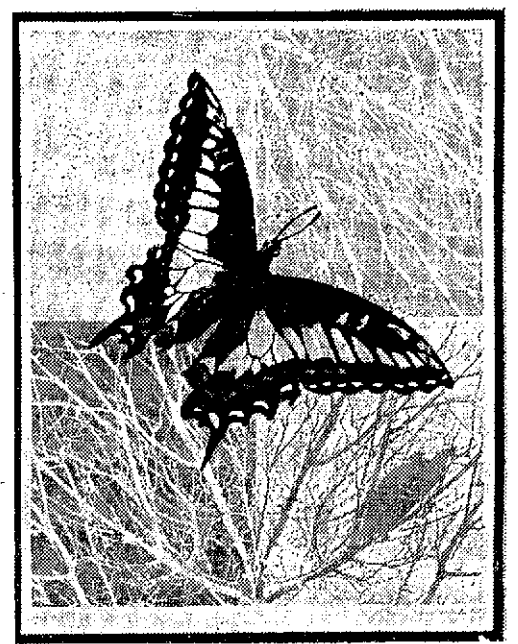

"There are many outstanding artists in the university and in the greater Long Beach area," he said. "People here don't value their own. They have the attitude that a fine work of art has to come from somewhere else."

A major problem of the Long Beach art world is lack of a suitable place to exhibit. This will be solved when the planned city museum is built.

"I don't think there is any place else, except maybe another church, which could have a show of this size," Gough said.

Gough has used some of the paintings as themes

RELIGION

"NEW LIFE" by Janet Edwards
Symbol of Resurrection

for sermons. There have been Sunday afternoon art meetings in the church in which parishioners have become acquainted with the artists.

The Council of Ministries of First Church has already chosen the theme for the Lenten Art Festival next year. It is "You Can Be Free." It is inspired by John 8:32-36:

"Turning to the Jews who had believed him, Jesus said, 'If you dwell within the revelation I have brought, you are indeed my disciples; you shall know the truth, and the truth will set you free.' They replied, 'We are Abraham's descendants; we have never been in slavery to any man. What do you mean by saying, 'You will become free men'? 'In very truth I tell you,' said Jesus, 'That everyone who commits sin is a slave. The slave has no permanent standing in the household, but the son belongs to it for ever. If then the Son sets you free, you will indeed be free.'"

That assignment should be tough enough for any artist.

Art festivals are no new thing for Gough. He started the St. Mark's Lenten Art Festival in San Diego. It is now in its twelfth year.

He explained why he feels that art is of great importance to religion. "Certainly a profound spiritual strategy underlies the art festival, for if the future is to witness a triumph of sanity and creative faith, the Church must contribute to renewal in every realm of society, including the arts."

Gough studied art at the University of Redlands, but he is not an artist because the rigorous schedule of a minister precludes a time-consuming avocation. He hopes the time will come when he can pick up a brush again.

'Y' breakfast

"Role of Religion in American Business" will be the theme of an address by Hubert Clark Jr., president of Baker Oil Tools Inc., at the Seventh Annual Good Friday Breakfast, sponsored by the Y.M.C.A. at Covenant Presbyterian Church, 607 E. Third St. 7:30 to 9 a.m.

Guest participants will be Clyde L. Brown, attorney; Father William Diamond, St. Matthews Church; William C. Barnes, dean, City College; Sen. George Deukmejian; Dr. David Burcham, minister, Covenant; Rev. Galal Gough, minister, First United Methodist Church, and the St. Luke's Episcopal Church Choir.

New pastor

The Bay Shore Community Church, 5100 The Toledo, has called the Rev. Kenneth A. Coates of Berkeley to be its permanent minister. The former pastor, the Rev. Milton G. Gabrielson, who served the church since 1935, became pastor emeritus in 1973.

Bible conference

"Jesus Christ in the Old Testament" will be the theme of a series of lectures by J. Barton Payne, professor of Old Testament, at the Reformed Bible Conference which opens Sunday, 3:30 p.m. at the Long Beach Orthodox Presbyterian Church, 500 E. San Antonio Drive.

The week-long conference, sponsored jointly by the Orthodox Presbyterians and Reformed Presbyterians, will be held at various churches in Los Angeles, La Mirada, Artesia, Garden Grove and Manhattan Beach.

Dr. Payne, who is a professor at Covenant Theological Seminary, St. Louis, is a graduate of the University of California, San Francisco Theological Seminary and Princeton Theological Seminary. He is an experienced archaeologist and has served on translation committees for three Bibles.

Bishop nixes gays

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N.Y. (UPI) — Bishop W. Ralph Ward, president-elect of the Council of Bishops of the United Methodist Church, Thursday said "there is simply no way" homosexuals will be allowed to become ministers in his religion.

The church's legislative body will meet in Portland, Ore. in 1976 and will discuss a proposal that "sexual orientation shall not be a bar to the ordained ministry."

Bishop Ward is the spiritual leader of more than 900 United Methodist churches in eastern New York, western Connecticut and the state of Vermont.

By MARK CLUTTER Religion Editor

Lent began on St. Patrick's Day this year and Easter will be on May 4. The Hebrew Passover will end on April 30.

That's the way it is if you are an Orthodox Christian. The Jews say Passover is next Thursday, coincidental with Maundy Thursday. That's what they say. The Orthodox know better.

Why all the confusion? Everyone who has read the Gospels knows that Jesus took his fateful trip to Jerusalem for the Passover.

Well, Passover and Easter are moveable feasts depending on the phases of the moon. There are also three calendars involved.

At the Council of Nicaea in 325 A. D. more than 300 bishops established the method of determining the time of Easter. Easter must be celebrated following the first full moon of the spring equinox but always after Passover. They used the Julian calendar which was established in the Roman world by Julius Caesar in 45 B.C.

The Orthodox and the Roman Catholic churches drifted apart. The Julian calendar was not entirely accurate. It was revised by Pope Gregory XIII in 1582. The Orthodox would not accept the invention of a Pope.

Most nations now use the more accurate Grego-

Commentary

When is Easter?

rian calendar, but the Orthodox stick to the old calendar in setting the date for Easter. And they determine when Passover will occur by a complicated traditional formula that once was fairly accurate. It wouldn't be "kosher" to call a rabbi and ask him.

The way the Jews find the date for Passover is also complicated. The western churches no longer hold that Easter must follow Passover.

There are other moveable feasts which are linked to Easter. Among them are Ascension, Pentecost and St. George. How are you going to celebrate St. George's Day?

A REPORT by David E. Anderson, UPI religion writer, of movements to bring homosexuals into the ordained ministry provoked letters of wrath from readers. Some letters will be printed later. Also, there will be an article on a church whose principal outreach is to homosexuals.

Many letters pointed out that homosexuality is condemned by both the Old and New Testaments. Some held that a homosexual cannot be a Christian.

That point is open to debate. All Christians are sinners, and Christianity is open to all sinners. Indeed, homosexuals can be of great service. The late W. S. Auden, a distinguished British poet, was homosexual. He was also devoutly Christian. He attended Communion daily.

His writings are filled with Christian idealism.

But should he have been a clergyman? Auden probably would have been angered at the suggestion.

The fitness of things is the heart of the problem. In any church one can think of, the ministers must maintain a more difficult pattern of conduct than the laity. A minister must not be a Don Juan, a drunk or a gambler. He must dress in a dignified manner. He must display warm friendliness without becoming too deeply involved with others. In many churches he must not smoke or sip wine.

There are clergymen whose emotional bias is toward their own sex. Any display of this bias would be fatal to a minister's career and damaging to his church.

It is unlikely that any person who is openly homosexual could have a worthwhile career in any church of the Judeo-Christian tradition.

Society has become more friendly to those doomed to the sad fate of being "gay." They are no longer persecuted, jailed or hanged. They can offer great services to society. Many are fine human beings who are well worth knowing. But, like everyone else, they must realize that opportunity is limited by personal characteristics.

This is one man's opinion. Any arguments?

SHOULD Christians celebrate the Passover?

St. Luke's Episcopal Church is going to give it a try.

On Maundy Thursday, which is coincidental with the Jewish Passover feast, the Christians will eat a Seder. Every effort will be made to conduct the feast according to Jewish tradition.

A Seder is a meal of unleavened bread, bitter herbs and other permitted foods. It commemorates the last meal in Egypt before the flight into the desert. At the meal a child asks why they are doing this. He is told how Jehovah brought the Children of Israel out of bondage.

Why will Christians observe this custom?

The Rev. A. LeRoy Young, rector, explained that the long history of the Jews and Christians started with the flight from Egypt.

The Seder will be followed by the celebration of the Eucharist.

MORE about calendars. The Bahai's of Long Beach celebrated New Year's Eve Thursday with a dinner at Kismet Restaurant in Lakewood.

Rhea Mealey, information officer of the Bahai community explained.

The Bahai's calendar begins at the spring equinox. The year has 19 months of 19 days each. There are four days, five in leap years, left over.

The months are named after the attributes of God: Gory, Beauty, Perfection, Justice, Majesty, etc.

New Year's is one of the nine holy days on which no work is done. Nor are the days given over to pleasure. They are best celebrated by serious conversation. This year is 132 B.E. (Bahai Era). The Bahai's believe that Bah'u'llah, the founder, is the most recent revelator of God's will for men. Other divine educators include Jesus, Muhammad, Zoroaster and Buddha. The founder, a Persian, was a captive of Muslim governments for almost 40 years. He died in exile in Palestine in 1892.

Bahai's in more than 300 countries and territories and has more than 60,000 communities. Miss Mealey said. Its World Center is in Haifa, Israel.

New awareness

You ask what does religion mean to me? In all honesty I can say that religion means nothing to me. Religion means to do something for God. Christianity means it's already done. There is nothing I can do of myself that will ever make me good enough to reach God. God reached down by way of the Cross of Calvary and made me worthy to know and love Him. The love of Christ within my life has given me a totally new awareness of God. To know Christ is to know God. My God is a personal, intimate God, who hears my prayers, answers my prayers, shares my joys and disappointments, and strengthens my faith in a reassuring confident manner.

A joyful Christian experience is unequalled by anything else. It is infectious. It tones up life. It establishes spiritual morale which is so important in life. While traveling with God, "can two walk together, except they be agreed," Amos 3:3

Technicolor unit closes

Will yellow brick road turn gray?

By BOB THOMAS
HOLLYWOOD — Have you ever taken a long-forgotten suit out of the closet and discovered that the once-brilliant threads had faded to lifeless hues?

Experts fear the same thing is happening to color movies of yesteryear. Those fears have been heightened by the shutting down of its three-color dye process plant by Technicolor, the name long associated with lavish Hollywood films.

Will future generations watch the "Wizard of Oz" stars following THE GRAY brick road?

Will burning Atlanta cast a pink glow in "Gone with the Wind"?

At least one observer, John Bolton in New York's Village Voice, had termed the Technicolor phase-out of its dye operation "a tremendous blow to future color preservation... our generation perhaps will be the last that will see old color films as they were meant to be seen."

LAWRENCE Karr, archivist of the American Film Institute in Washington, D.C., agreed that the problem is grave, since the Technicolor dye transfer "is the stablest known method of preserving color on film."

Paul Deer, manager of the Technicolor plant in North Hollywood, said that the company's longtime dye-transfer operation was closed Jan. 1 "to move with the competition."

Technicolor will still maintain its dye-transfer plants in London and Rome and is building one in Red China.

"We reconstitute old subjects all the time," said Deer. "I think this whole issue has been blown up beyond proportions."

Film archivists don't think so. They are gravely concerned that America's film heritage is being severely damaged by neglect and the ravages of time. Color especially worries them.

"PERHAPS we will be able to save a record of color films by transferring them to black and white," said the American Film Institute's Karr.

"But without color those films will lack the artistic and emotional impact that they were meant to have."

To understand the problem requires a knowledge of how color films have been made — no easy matter for the layman.

In the early part of the century, film makers achieved color by the tedious process of painting each frame by hand. That proved impractical as movies became a mass medium. D. W. Griffith and other achieved a sense of color by tinting the film to fit the mood — blue for night scenes, red for fire, etc.

IN 1915 a college teacher named Herbert T. Kalmus formed a company to develop color film; he named it Technicolor, after his alma mater, MIT.

By 1925 he had developed a system of cementing two strips of color film (orange-red and blue-green). It was used in the

Douglas Fairbanks spectacle, "The Black Pirate."

The two-strip system brought problems. The film blurred and split apart, and the range of true color was impossible — skies and seas were never blue.

In the early 1930s, Technicolor developed a three-strip system. The oversized camera recorded the scene via a beam-splitting prism on three separate negatives, each recording a primary color. The negatives are run through a dye-transfer process, called imbibition, then the images are combined for the finished film in living color.

The Technicolor process was expensive, but audiences liked it, especially in lavish musicals and adventure films.

Technicolor continued its near-monopoly on color films until new technology brought the single-strip system in the 1950s. Eastman Kodak introduced a new film with chemical layers, each layer sensitive to different colors. Thus movies could be made with a single negative and more compact cameras. Each Technicolor gave up the three-strip system in 1954.

So much for history. Why are film archivists so worried about saving color films?

— The shutdown of Technicolor's dye-transfer plant will make preservation of vintage films much more difficult.

— Single-negative color film lacks staying power; the chemicals are subject to deterioration, with a resulting loss of color fidelity.

The problem is illustrated with the recent return of "This is Cinerama."

The original 1952 film introduced the wide, wide screen by throwing three images from three projectors. Since no theaters are so equipped now, Cinerama decided to re-release the movie on a single film.

"Reducing three images to one was difficult enough," said Linwood Dunn, whose Film Effects of Hollywood did the job. "Color was also a problem."

"We discovered the negative had faded in places, and there was no way to match it. We had to go to theater prints, but they were full of scratches and breaks in the reels. We finally put together a new version, but there was no way to duplicate the color of the original."

THE BEST way to preserve color films is to make a separation — that is, to isolate the three basic colors on three strips of film, as the old Technicolor three-strip process did.

"But that is a very expensive process," said Ralph Sargent, a film technician whose "Preserving the Moving Image" is the definite volume on the subject.

"Making a positive separation costs about $9,000 a picture. Companies are not willing to do that, except with their most important pictures."

Because film companies are reluctant to make the outlay, they are losing untold dollars in potential income.

IT IS rumored that all of one company's color films of the 1950s have faded irretrievably. Sargent says no single print of "Oklahoma" or "The King and I" exists with the original color.

Complicating the whole issue is the fact that most movies of the past exist on nitrate film, which is notorious for crumbling away or igniting spontaneously. So not only does the color have to be separated; the movie must be converted to safety film.

Preservation is being done by the American Film Institute and the Library of Congress, by George Eastman House at Rochester, N.Y., and by the Museum of Modern Art, New York City.

But the archivists insist that the film companies themselves must take action. Otherwise a colorful record of American culture and history may fade forever.

The rapid rise of Miss Gillyooly

NEW YORK — America's No. 1 actress is getting to be Edna Rae Gillyooly from Detroit, whom you probably never heard of till now.

Ellen Burstyn grew up with that Irish name, a girl from Cass Tech who was pretty enough to become a model. And she also became one of the "Jackie Gleason Glee Girls" 20 years ago. Trying for the stage, she was "Ellen McRae" opposite Sam Levene in "Fair Game" on B'way. When she got three oscar nominations in pictures, she went back to B'way.

Now there'll surely be more nominations after her triumph playing a cheating wife who has a 25-year-affair with a married man in "Same Time Next Year."

A little past 40 now, curvy, sensuous-looking, very humorous — and natural and believable — she was on the buffet line at a Hotel Piccadilly party. "What's your real hair color?" I asked her. "I don't remember," she said.

After marrying actor Neil Burstyn she became Ellen Burstyn and that was no insult to two previous husbands. She loves the Bernard Slade comedy she does with Charles Grodin and assured me she wouldn't think of going to Hollywood for the Academy Award night just because she was nominated for "Alice Doesn't Live Here Any More."

"I wouldn't want to get out of the play even for one night," she said.

Having also been Oscar-nominated for "The Last Picture Show" and the mother in "The Exorcist," she confessed, "My favorite was 'The King of Marvin Gardens' which wasn't nominated."

The evening's heroine, chaperoned by her son Jefferson, 13, inasmuch as she isn't married now, said she isn't concerned about not winning some award.

"I like being nominated," she said. "I got nominated three years out of four. I like that. What year didn't I get nominated? I have to ask."

Wish I'd Said That: Webster's Unafraid Dictionary defines a Lost & Found dept. as "where people bring things they've found and can't use."

Remembered Quote: "Perhaps the reason there's no sign of life on other planets is that their scientists were a little more advanced than ours."

OPEN 6:45 DAILY 6:15 SUN.

DODES'KA DEN — Akira Kurosawa's view of man's affirmation of life as families dream of escape from the adversities of a Tokyo slum.

ESCAPE TO WITCH MOUNTAIN — A Disney thriller with Ray Milland as a multimillionaire intent on using two psychic children to increase his wealth and power. Eddie Albert plays the children's benefactor. (G)

SOLDIER BLUE — Candice Bergen stars in a western adventure about the mistreatment of Indians. With Peter Strauss and Donald Pleasence. (PG)

MURDER ON THE ORIENT EXPRESS — Albert Finney, barely recognizable, is sleuth Hercule Poirot in this Agatha Christie classic thriller about a murder on a plush passenger train. With Lauren Bacall, Ingrid Bergman and Sean Connery. (PG)

A WOMEN UNDER THE INFLUENCE — Portraying a housewife who has a nervous breakdown; Gena Rowlands turns in a fine performance directed by John Cassavetes. Peter Falk plays the husband. (R)

LENNY — Dustin Hoffman and Valerie Perrine give excellent portrayals in this beautifully photographed (black and white) drama about the painful life of comedian Lenny Bruce. (R)

GODFATHER II — A stunning sequel. Robert

De Niro (outstanding) as the Godfather in early 1900s New York, and Al Pacino as the dangerously troubled heir overlord. (R)

THE ISLAND AT THE TOP OF THE WORLD — A Disney adventure about arctic explorers in 1907 who find an unknown land inhabited by lost Vikings. With David Hartman. (G)

BLAZING SADDLES — An often hilarious and bawdy parody of traditional western films. With Mel Brooks, Cleavon Little, Gene Wilder, Harvey Korman and Madeline Kahn. (R)

YOUNG FRANKENSTEIN — Mel Brooks' hilarious spoof of Frankenstein movies. With Gene Wilder, Peter Boyle, Cloris Leachman and Madeline Kahn. (PG)

THE FRONT PAGE — A funny new production of the Ben Hecht-Charles MacArthur play about cynical Chicago newspapermen in the late 1920s. With Jack Lemmon as an ace reporter, and Walter Matthau, in a fine performance, as his editor. (PG)

THE STRONGEST MAN IN THE WORLD — A Disney comedy about two college students who unwittingly concoct a superstrength formula. With Cesar Romero, Kurt Russell, Joe Flynn, Eve Arden and Phil Silvers. (G)

THE TOWERING INFERNO — A suspenseful drama about a massive blaze that has trapped persons high in a skyscraper. With Steve McQueen, Paul Newman, William Holden and Faye Funaway. (PG)

CHINATOWN — Private detective Jack Nicholson is ensnared in a shocking relationship between Fay Dunaway and her father, John Huston, in an engrossing drama set in Los Angeles in the 1930s. Directed by Roman Polanski. (R)

THE LONGEST YARD — Burt Reynolds Portrays an ex-pro quarterback in a fast-paced, gag-filled action drama directed by Robert Aldrich. (R)

FREEBIE AND THE BEAN — A shoot-em-up comedy about two wacky detectives in San Francisco. With James Caan, Alan Arkin and Valerie Harper. (R)

THE STING — Excellent. Funny, suspenseful and at times touching as 1930s con men Robert Redford and Paul Newman set up the elaborate swindle of a rackets chief. With Robert Shaw. (PG)

HARRY AND TONTO — A heartwarming, delightful sketch of life starring Art Carney as a retired professor who lives with an unusual cat. (R)

AIRPORT '75 — Inspired by "Airport," a suspense drama involving a crippled 747 airliner. With Charlton Heston, Karen Black and Gloria Swanson. (PG)

THE GROOVE TUBE — An unevenly funny and often crude satire on television. May offend some. (R)

Scott can't seem to make quitting stick

LOS ANGELES (AP) — When George C. Scott announced his retirement from acting last year, he said, "I hope I can make it stick." Predictably, he can't.

CBS has announced that Scott will star in a two-hour television drama, "Fear on Trial," based on the real-life experience of blacklisted actor John Henry Faulk.

Faulk was the central figure in a celebrated trial in which he sued anti-Communists who circulated lists of entertainment figures suspected of Red leanings. Attorney Louis Nizer won the case and a large settlement for Faulk.

YOUR HOROSCOPE by JEANE DIXON

Forecast for Sunday

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Despite the fact that it's Palm Sunday, you have a decision to make on material affairs. People aren't available other times or you're behind in your schedule.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): You're more concerned about your friends than yourself. Probability is they're doing okay, or better. Take a break; wait for intuition before you move on an outdated plan.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Be here early enough to see the events of the morning take shape or to have a proper share in directing local functions. You needn't say much; just be alert and thoughtful.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Try to put aside business concerns today and listen to the inner voices of inspiration and the outer voices of earnest people seeking truth and justice. Bring your life into balance.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): The urge to get back to work should wait until you take care of your responsibility in community customs or expressions of faith. There are advantages to conventional approaches.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): There's nothing to be gained by rushing anyone this Sunday, but be ready to respond when invited. Make it an early evening-you have a heavy Monday schedule to work out.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): It's a somewhat emotional day for you. You may have extra routines to attend to, even some unexpected work. Get busy and finish early so you can return to normal.

Aries (March 21-April 19): Fundamental turning points come in the middle of a series of complex, apparently trivial details. It's more a matter of changing direction than making any specific decision.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): Go along with traditional ceremony and amenities this special Sunday. This isn't the time for you to force issues or make demands. Later you'll wish you'd quit earlier.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): Despite the contradictions you see in the passing scene, there's an advantage in minding your own affairs rather than trying to straighten out things beyond your control.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): Fulfill your share of community customs, then enjoy yourself without going to a great deal of expense. There's great benefit in discreet inquiry among people you seldom see.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): Now that spring has come in spirit, do what you originally set out to do. Grow with the upward mood of the day. Keep your expressions, comments simple and to the point.

Harbor Bank sees bright '75 future

Harbor Bank of Long Beach expects net income in the quarter ending March 31 to climb 10 per cent from the last, President J.J. Thomason told shareholders at the bank's initial annual meeting.

Starting last May 13 at 777 E. Ocean Blvd., the bank's first year projections were attained in half the time as year-end assets advanced to $7,535,692 and deposits, rose to $5,622,258.

"This has us among the most successful new banks in the U.S.," Thomason said.

He told shareholders the "momentum gained last year is continuing in this," and predicted earnings for this quarter to hit $27,000 or 18 cents a share—up 10 per cent from the prior quarter and 125 per cent from all of 1974.

"ASSETS WILL exceed $8.6 million, a 13 per cent gain from Dec. 31 and deposits move to $6.7 million—up 20 per cent.

In his recap of 1974, Thomason said the bank moved into the profit column in July in only the second full operational month. Deposit and asset growth has continued at a steady pace "despite the trying times for financial institutions."

The board of directors, composed of area business and professional leaders, was re-elected. They are:

James H. Gray, chairman, and president of Jim Gray Imports; Jack Jay Jacobs, retired real estate broker; Kermit Q. Jones, owner of The Scotsman's Dairy Farms, Inc.; Dorothy K. Matteson, Nightingale Uniforms owner; Dr. Hamilton M. Moody, clinical psychologist;

Also, George M. Murciison, CPA, Murchison & Marek, Inc.; Dr. Malcolm C. Todd, physician-surgeon; James A. Willingham, Boulevard Buick president; Richard G. Wilson, law partner, Allen, Wilson, George & Egmon, Inc., and Thomason.

Harbor Bank is traded over the counter.

Industry Week Steelmakers concerned

CLEVELAND — Steel-makers' estimates of 1975 mill shipments of steel continue to shrink while their concern over the size of 1975 steel imports continues to grow, Industry Week reported this week.

Forecasts of 1975 mill shipments are now down to 93 million to 94 million net tons. Such a volume was considered good before the superstrong years of 1973-74, the magazine for managers pointed out. In these last two years, mill shipments of steel totaled 111.4 million and 109.5 million net tons, respectively.

Last fall, most steel companies were projecting 1975 shipments of 103 million to 106 million tons, or even a little more. By year's end, these figures had been cut by around 5 million tons.

ALTHOUGH steel imports of almost 16 million net tons in 1974 were two million tons over most expectations, U.S. steel-makers were startled by the unprecedented size of imports in the October-January period.

Domestic steelmakers hope there will be a dramatic drop in steel imports in the second quarter of this year. However, there's a possibility there won't be. If steel import contracts were for one year with the first shipments scheduled for six months after the contract was negotiated, they won't expire until the second half of this year. And, some steel users looking toward possible steel shortages in the future may not want to take a chance of damaging relationships with foreign steel producers by attempting to escape now from contract obligations, Industry Week said.

U.S. steelmakers are not only worried about im-

SACRAMENTO — Is your group health plan healthy?

Many are, but some of the 162 plans registered with the state are not on solid foundations, say supporters of proposed legislation that would beef up state regulations.

The attorney general last year issued 24 cease and desist orders against prepaid health plans (PHP) and health maintenance organizations (HMO), said Robert O'Brien, head of AG consumer protection section.

"A LOT OF THEM reconciled their problems and a lot of them went out of business," said O'Brien, adding, "Yes, we're looking into quite a few of them now."

Yet the attorney general's office wants out of the task of policing the plans, given it by the Knox-Mills Act of 1965 when there were only about 20 plans involved.

HON. CLAUDE BENNETT, minister of industry and tourism for Canada's Ontario Province, right, toured Long Beach's Queen Mary this week while on a Southern California trade mission. Showing him the ship was Capt. James Lynch, director of the city's Queen Mary Department. Ted Lyman, manager of the QM Hyatt Hotel, joined the tour later.

Credit cards can consume users

Credit cards, the American substitute for instant disposable cash, are pushing the average consumer into excessive debt, warned said Dwight L. Wentzel, business instructor at Long Beach City College.

For as long as credit cards have existed there have been habitual abusers of the buy-now-pay-later lifestyle but a whole new category of debt-ridden consumer is emerging with inflation and recession today, said Wentzel, who teaches accounting and office procedures classes.

Credit counselors nationwide are reporting from 183 local agencies that three to four times more people than is normal are seeking relief from debt trouble he calculated.

THE SPECTRE of increasing individual bankruptcies looms large with the grim prospect of national financial insolvency.

The average over-spender has been described as between 25 and 35 and disposing of about $20,000 a year.

Confronted by unemployment, unpaid bills, discouraged and embarrassed, the overextended are forced to organize a budget to live within means, to pressure creditors to suspend interest charges, to set up loan schedules for repayment of individual accounts, and to earn additional money through part-time employment, he said.

Bankruptcy declarations are increasing as consumers are unprepared to deal with financial emergencies due to lack of good-credit or savings, he said.

Another complication has been the introduction of a new method by banks and stores to calculate interest fees on charge account or credit card purchases.

IN AN EFFORT to increase revenues, encourage earlier payment and simplify bookkeeping, the "average daily balance" system has been developed. The added interest can range from pennies to dollars depending on the money involved and the time of payment, he said.

With the regular adjusted balance system, the interest charges are determined strictly by the amount you pay; with the "average daily balance" method, the charges are figured by when you pay during the billing period, he said.

Interest fees will change significantly depending upon how long the money is owed, said Wentzel.

Most people are unaware of the 18 per cent service charge added to unpaid accounts after due dates and would be better off financially by withdrawing from savings to pay penalties, he said.

"The best way to avoid credit-card roulette," Wentzel counseled, "is to limit purchases to those amounts which can be paid off quickly with adequate disposable income."

Group health categorized as health maintenance organizations or prepaid health plans, represent more than six million Californians.

They include Blue Shield, Kaiser and Ross Loos. Blue Shield, the largest with about one million persons enrolled, is being studied by O'Brien's staff to determine whether it is actually a health insurance firm, not an HMO or PHP.

Prepaid health plans also under AG scrutiny but administered by the state Health Department under Medi-Cal reach another 275,514 family units at a cost of $8.3 million a month to the state.

Medi-Cal is embroiled in controversy. Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. last month ordered a study to determine whether the state can responsibly continue the program beyond June 30.

LEGISLATION now proposed by Assemblyman John Knox, the Richmond Democrat who helped carry the 1965 law with Sen. James Mills, D-San Diego, would affect both kinds of health plans.

Drafted by the attorney general's staff, it would put the plans under the Department of Corporations, making them show as much fiscal strength as firms that offer securities to the public.

"We're operating on the theory that these plans are offering the most consumed item outside of groceries and the automobile, but they have less scrutiny than security offerings," said Martha Gorman, Knox' consultant working on the bill.

What happens when a health plan goes under? In most cases, such as the National Prepaid Health Plan and American Medical Services that folded in 1974, the subscribing firms merely switch their employee coverage to other plans, O'Brien said.

However, as many as 2,000 senior citizens who didn't belong to big firms, were left without coverage.

They found it hard to get into other plans when a sister firm of American Medical Services folded.

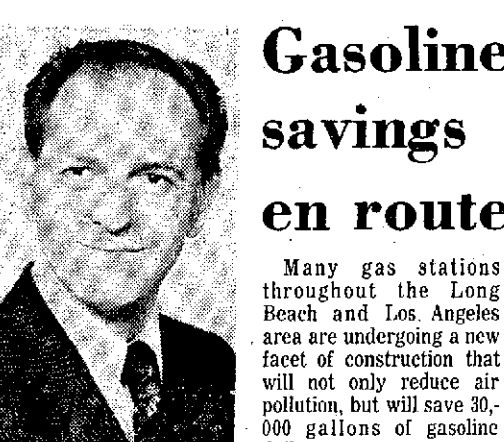

THE STRICTEST financial requirement of the new Knox bill, said Ms. Gorman, would make the plans take out insurance "so somebody could pick up the cost to keep a plan going until people can get other coverage."

She said plans that have been operating for at least five years probably would be able to apply for exemption from reinsurance.

She said amendments under consideration for the bill, expected to go before the Assembly health Committee in April, include provisions to provide standards for quality of care and consumer complaint response.

"The plans will have to demonstrate that they are effectively dealing with complaints — one of the biggest problems in prepaid health," Ms. Gorman commented.

Robert Christ, health plan registrar for the AG, said he has received some complaints that recipients "aren't treated by doctors, just white-clothed attendants."

DONALD WOLTER of the Medical Arts Pharmacy has been elected president of the Long Beach Pharmaceutical Association for the second successive year. Vice president is Marvin Lieblein, Family Pharmacy, Dan Heincy, Family Pharmacy; William Barham, Santa Fe Drugs, secretary; Kenneth Mailman, Finer Pharmacy, treasurer; and Dan Heincy, Hopkins Pharmacy, continuing education.

Salvaging gas will be accompanied by recycling vapors back to a bulk distribution facility or refinery where they will be condensed back into liquid gasoline. Without controls, vapors would escape into the atmosphere.

Hydrocarbon control is important in the county since the containment is a necessary ingredient for the production of photochemical smog, the major air pollution problem in the area.

The new rules will be implemented fully by June 1977.

'Breathing spell' for S & Ls seen

The president of the Federal Home Loan Bank of San Francisco told savings and loans executives in Los Angeles Friday that the first half of 1975 could "provide a breathing spell" for the S&Ls, to be used prudently, yet profitably.

"We can watch the broad outlines of future economic and financial conditions come more sharply into focus," Dr. Maurice Mann said.

Business Today: Are the books in order?

Auditors have 'red flags' to indicate deeper probes

By JOHN CUNNIFF

NEW YORK (AP) — In less complicated, and probably less devious, times than these, the auditor's occupation was often attended by a large measure of routine and boredom.

Not any more.

Scandals at Equity Funding and National Student Marketing, among other companies, have put public accountants on a hot seat. No longer can they lean back and accept routine; now they must sit on the edge of the seat and expect the worst.

A visit with Haldeman

By BOB MARTIN
TV-Radio Editor

On Sunday evening, if you have the inclination, you can bring H. R. Haldeman into your home.

The first of two interviews — each lasting an hour — with the former White House staff chief for President Nixon will air at 6 p.m. tomorrow on Channel 2.

"Haldeman: The Nixon Years — Conversations

With Mike Wallace" is the title of the two-part CBS News special, which will conclude the following Sunday.

CBS News correspondent Wallace interviewed Haldeman earlier this month in Los Angeles.

The interviews have stirred a "buying the news" controversy, inasmuch as CBS News paid Haldeman more than $25,000 to be interviewed.

What do I think about it? I don't like it. I don't like the idea of paying anyone for a news interview, and I especially don't like to see wrongdoers profit from their misdeeds, whether it be from books, lectures, television or movies. But that seems to be the way things are in this world we live in.

FOR MY MONEY, the $25,000 would have been better spent had CBS donated it to the National Easter Seal Society or some other charitable organization.

Which brings us to the point that the Easter Seal Telethon starts at 11 tonight on Channel 11. Peter Falk, National Easter Seals chairman, hosts the fund-raising program, which will be telecast live from Metromedia Square (Channel 11) in Hollywood.

The show will continue throughout the night and up until 4 p.m. Sunday, except for an interruption of about three hours, starting at 10 a.m., for the Dodgers-Mets exhibition baseball game.

Numerous celebrities will join Falk on the telethon to help raise funds to aid crippled children and adults. The Bryman School, 3633 Long Beach Blvd., Long Beach, will take pledge calls (426-1792) starting at 8 this evening, or donations may be taken to the school.

"STAR TREK," which was extremely popular as a TV series with some viewers, is going to be made into a theatrical movie by Paramount Pictures and Gene Roddenberry's Norway Productions.

Roddenberry will write the screen adaptation of the series and is negotiating with William Shatner, Leonard Nimoy, DeForest Kelley, James Doohan, George Takei, Majel Barrett and Michelle Nichols to play their original roles.

TV's "Star Trek" ended production in 1969, but is in syndication in 142 areas in the United States and in 47 other markets.

SPEAKING of old TV series, "Kukla, Fran and Ollie," a children's attraction for more than three decades, will return to the tube this fall as a weekly half-hour series on the five NBC-owned stations, including Channel 4 in Los Angeles. It is due to air early Saturday evenings, beginning in September.

"EMERGENCY!," which has faced the popular "All in the Family" comedy series for four seasons on Saturday nights, will be back for its fifth season in the fall, NBC announces.

The series has been a prime mover in encouraging public acceptance of the financing of paramedic dic services across the nation, according to authorities in the field of emergency medicine.

BOB NEWHART's show is preempted on Channel 2 at 9:30 tonight for a 30-minute special, "The Other Side of Stardom," hosted by David Sheehan.

On the program, Marlon Brando, Richard Burton, Paul Newman, George C. Scott, Warren Beatty, Liza Minnelli, Faye Dunaway and Ellen Burstyn tell how stardom has affected their lives.

EUROPE's extensive inland waterways are explored in a National Geographic special, "Yankee Sails Across Europe," from 9 to 10 tonight on Channel 11. The documentary follows Capt. Irving Johnson and his wife, Electra, on their 2,000-mile voyage from the Mediterranean to Copenhagen on the ketch Yankee.

Flannery will get you to second

Lakewood High shortstop John Flannery steals second base with good margin to spare as Millikan's Pat Estes tries to flag down wide throw in fourth inning Friday. Lancers defeated Rams, 8-1.

Lakewood clips Millikan, 8-1; Wilson logs 3rd blank in row

Lakewood High's baseball team turned in another overpowering performance Friday, yet couldn't shake Wilson prior to taking off for the Easter vacation break.

The Lancers recorded their 20th successive league victory over a span of three years, collecting 12 hits at home to defeat Millikan, 8-1. Lakewood is now 4-0 in 1975 but must wait until April 4 to get a crack at Wilson (3-0-1).

Wilson, only 3-5 in non-league games, remained the surprise team so far by winning at Compton, 10-0, for its third successive shutout while Jordan stopped Poly, 4-1, at Blair Field in the other contest.

Junior righthander Stan

Williams scattered five hits and also swung a big bat, collecting three hits to lead Lakewood.

John Herbold continued to get big dividends from practically every Lakewood player he inserted in the lineup. The 12 hits, including a double and two triples, were spread among nine players. Also, five different batters had a RBI.

Williams received all the support he needed in the first when Lakewood scored four runs off loser Ken Lorin.

John Flannery drew a one-out walk, stole second, went to third on Don Ruzek's infield hit. Kevin Miller, the No. 1 first baseman since Jeff Newon has been injured, then hammered a long triple to left center to score two runs.

A double by Vince Gallo and single by Alex Doralis produced the third and fourth runs.

Millikan, which for most of the year had been the league's most impressive hitting team, scored its only run on a ground out in the sixth. The Rams had two runners on with no outs in the first and couldn't score; then saw two players take called third strikes in the fourth with runners at first and third and only one out.

Wilson, since tying Jordan 2-2 in its league opener, has not allowed a run in 23 innings.

Jim Powell and Rich Rivera combined on a four-hitter Friday as the Bruins led 8-0 after three innings and breezed home.

Wilson scored five times in the second on only two hits as three walks, a hit batter and three errors by Compton made it easy.

Curt Shafer and Chris Bock each had two hits for Wilson.

Jordan broke into the win column for the first time as Perry Self hurled a strong three-hitter at Blair Field.

Two of Poly's three hits produced the only Jack-rabbit run in the fourth when Dale Meza singled and Dale Adams tripled.

The only other Poly runner to get as far as second base was Jerome Washington who doubled with one out in the fifth but was stranded.

Jordan scored twice in the fourth when walks to Tod Newby and Ken Filinuk preceded RBI hits by Troy Bowman and Ron Herron.

Filinuk tripled to lead off the sixth and scored the last Jordan run on a sacrifice fly by Frank Cardarella.

Arizona St. tops USC on one-hitter

Arizona State sophomore Floyd Bannister handcuffed national champion USC with a one-hitter as the Sun Devils shut out the Trojans 3-0 Friday night.

Bannister, a southpaw, fired 14 strikeouts and allowed only two USC baserunners in the contest.

19th Joe Lanning Relays Whippets take to the track

After sidestepping rain puddles for much of the early season, high school speedsters will have an opportunity to record marks against top-flight competition today in the 19th Joe Lanning Relays at Long Beach City College.

Athletes from 15 high schools are entered. First running event is at 11 a.m. with flights of the 330 hurdles. LBCC coach Don Mulligan has also added a four-man, four-mile relay for the first time at 12:25.

Schools entered are Aviation, Bellflower, Downey, El Rancho, Hawthorne, Jordan, Lakewood, Millikan, Mira Costa, Monte Vista, Palos Verdes, Poly, Savanna, Western and Wilson.

Poly has won the varsity title for the past half-dozen years and 15 out of 18. But the Jackrabbits are expected to receive a strong challenge today from Palos Verdes, which has entered a full team for the first time. Palos Verdes is strong in the distance events.

Poly has already dropped two non-league meets, a first in seven years. The Hares have a near-certain winner in shotputter Mark Madison, whose best of 58-1/4 ranks among the CIF leaders.

The outstanding track achievement by a Moore Leaguer is probably the 1:56.4 half-mile run by Lakewood's Mike Hayes in a dual meet Feb. 20.

Record performance by LBCC gymnasts

The Long Beach City College gymnastics team turned in a record breaking performance Friday in defeating Golden West College and Harbor.

The Vikings amassed 168.59 points to establish a national JC record. Golden West finished with 153.26, followed by Harbor's 123-95.

Elliot Schnee broke his own school and state record in the rings with a mark of 9.5. Schnee's previous best was 9.35. John Hart's 9.5 in the high bar set a school record for the event.

Harold Maghe led a Long Beach sweep of the top four places in the pommel horse with a score of 9.35.

Cerritos fast on the track

Sophomore Jeff English recorded a personal best and set a meet record Friday by running the mile in 4:14.8 and leading Cerritos College to an 82-63 South Coast Conference track win over Santa Ana.

Mike Graves of Santa Ana recorded the same time but English was awarded the win. Santa Ana was also dealt defeats by quartermiler Dave Lizardi (49.9), halfmiler Carlos Ponce (1:56.4) and hurdler Mike Singleton, who won the 120 highs (15.0) and 440 intermediates (57.4).

Cerritos raps Chaffey, 5-2

Steve Hansen went the distance, scattering six hits and striking out eight, to improve his record to 6-0 Friday as Cerritos College notched a 5-2 victory non-conference victory over Chaffey in the Fullerton Tournament.

Bob McKelvey slapped an RBI single in the Falcons' two-run first inning and rapped a double that helped Cerritos chalk up another run in the third. John Alvarez and Dave Crowder also collected RBI. Both Chaffey runs scored on errors.

WINTER SPORTS

SANTA CRISTINA, Italy—Austrian Franz Klammer moved into the lead with Italy's Gustavo Thoeni and Ingemar Stenmark of Sweden at the top of the World Cup standings by winning the downhill race in a track record time of 2:09.22. Norway's Erik Haaker finished second, Bernhard Russi of Switzerland third. Klammer, Thoeni and Stenmark meet for the men's championships in the slalom Sunday. Thoeni and Stenmark are slalom specialists.

WHITEFISH, Mont.—Steven Mahre of the U.S. was second in the giant slalom but his combined time gave him a victory over countryman Steve Heuerich. Lyndall Heyer and Leslie Smith, both of the U.S. finished first and second in the women's slalom and giant slalom, respectively. Canada's Karen Cloutier was second in both events.

L.B. bowling meet resumes

The 28th Long Beach Bowling Association city tournament begins its third week of action today at Cove Lanes in Wilmington with squads at 2, 6:30 and 9:30 p.m.

Squads on Sunday will be held at 11:30 a.m., 2 and 4:30 p.m.

There are more than 1,200 competitors entered in the $11,500, four-week tournament, which continues through March 29.

There is no admission charge for viewing.

Kings seek clinch of second

Countdown to playoffs continues tonight and the Kings can clinch second place with a win or tie over division rival Pittsburgh. At least 14,000 Forum followers are expected for the 8 o'clock NHL match.

Since coach Bob Pulford's skaters hold a commanding 11-point lead over the Penguins, the Kings would have to lose their final eight starts while Pittsburgh would need to win its final seven games in order to knock L.A. out of second spot.

Not even Jimmy (The Greek) Snyder would quote odds of that happening since the Kings still have a couple of soft touches with Washington and Kansas City while the Pens must encounter Montreal twice.

In five meetings this season, the teams have slashed and dashed to a standoff—2-1-2. They are 1-1 at the Forum.

With 51 points to date, coach Marc Boileau's charges have notched the most points in their eight-year history. Jean Pronovost is the Pens' top marksman with 43 goals—the second year in a row he's gone over the 40-goal mark.

Pierre LaRouche also will be a marked man. LaRouche is the NHL's leading rookie scorer with 27 goals and 32 assists for 59 points. Since all nine of the Pens' forwards have 22 or more goals, the Kings' checking lines face a busy evening. With 301 goals, the Pens are the third highest scoring team in the league. The Kings have popped in 243, a club record.

The Kings are very much alive in the Vezina Trophy race. They've given up 168 goals, tying Philadelphia for fewest in the NHL. The Kings have played one more game.

Wilson gunned down

Gahr's Jim Wilson was tagged out at third by Neff's Rick Alkire on throw from centerfielder Bob Molina Friday in Suburban League contest. Wilson, on second, tried to advance on sacrifice fly but was gunned down by Molina. Gahr won, 5-3.

Excelsior, Lynwood explode for wins

The rich got richer and the poor got poorer in San Gabriel Valley League baseball play Friday, as undefeated Excelsior and Lynwood collected shutout victories.

Excelsior took advantage of three Paramount errors and fourteen walks to parlay eight hits into twice as many runs as the Pirates halted the Pirates 16-0.

A nine-run explosion by Excelsior in the first inning put the game out of reach.

Ray Morales threw a six-hitter at Paramount and was backed by Steve Chavez' three RBI and Tim Painton's two singles and a double. The win ran Excelsior's SGVL record to 2-0. Paramount is now 0-2.

Norwalk managed only one hit in falling to Lynwood 11-0. Ken Szamocki, the Knight pitcher, was flawless except for a third inning, two-out bunt single, and two walks.

First baseman Randy Mullins led the 13-hit Lynwood assault, getting three hits in four at-bats, including a triple, three RBI and scoring two runs. Lynwood, now 2-0 in league play, sent 10 batters to the plate in the seven-run fifth inning against Norwalk, now 0-2.

Downey scored twice in the bottom of the third inning and pitcher Greg Stempson made the runs stand up as it defeated La Mirada, 2-1, in a night game.

Stempson allowed only one hit, a two-out single in the sixth inning that scored the Matadors' only run. He struck out 13 batters and walked a single hitter.

Tom McShane, who cracked a two-run homer in the third inning, scored the winning run on a passed ball to help Bellflower edge Warren, 3-2, in eight innings.

Unbeaten Gahr tops Neff, 5-3

Pitcher Steve Swartz went three for three and scored twice to help undefeated Gahr (3-0) edge Neff, 5-3, Friday in Suburban League action.

Neff, which suffered its second loss of the week, fell to 1-2.

Swartz allowed seven hits but struck out eight and walked only one to gain his second league win. Gahr catcher Glenn Tellis was also three for three, knocking in one run.

Gahr scored twice in the fifth to clinch the win when Jim Wilson drove in Keith Lupo and a sacrifice fly brought in Swartz.

Neff lost a chance of rebuttal when a bases-loaded opportunity resulted in only one run in the bottom of the fifth.

Cerritos scored 10 runs in the first inning and held off Mayfair for an 11-8 victory.

Fifteen Cerritos batters came to the plate in the opening inning and collected seven hits, three walks and utilized five Mayfair errors for the 10 runs.

Mike Harris went two for three and scored two runs for Cerritos while Steve Dodd drove in a pair of runs with a double. Nick Bish had three singles in five at-bats for Mayfair.

Glenn continued to shed its 0-15 reputation of last season by rallying for four runs in the seventh inning to score a 7-4 win over Artesia.

Glenn is now 2-1.

Nick Kliffoff and Jerry Walton collected RBI extra-base hits in the seventh for Glenn.

Jeff Johnson cracked a three-run homer for Artesia in the first inning to help the Pioneers to an early 3-1 lead.

Los Alamitos blanks Lions

Los Alamitos pitcher Kevin Shelton ran his scoreless inning streak to 20 Friday with a 4-0 Sunset League win over the Westminster Lions.

Shelton, who struck out seven and walked six en route to the six-hit victory, got all the help he needed when Mike Carpenter crashed a two-run homer in the bottom of the third inning. The victory ran the Griffins mark to 2-0 in league play.

Two errors in the bottom of the ninth broke up a scoreless battle between Western and Marina, and the Vikings took a 1-0 victory.

Western pitcher Harry Wing was pitching a one-hit shutout in the bottom of what proved to be the final frame, when Vike Gail Griffin reached on an error by the shortstop. Bob Tiezzi singled, and Griffin scoring on an error by the catcher.

Loara rallied for three unearned runs in the top of the seventh to topple Fountain Valley 3-1. Trailing 1-0, the Barons put together a double off the centerfielder's glove, an error, a triple to right and a second error to score three times.

Santa Ana Valley put together a walk and three singles to push across three runs in the bottom of the seventh inning and whip Sunny Hills 8-7.

Myron White was three-for-four at the plate for Santa Ana Valley including a sixth inning homer, and a key single in the seventh.

Pros take to the track today
Jipcho runs for double dollars

Ben Jipcho continues his relentless assault on Mike O'Hara's wallet today at the Los Angeles Sports Arena in the International Track Association's fourth show of the 1975 season.

The 32-year-old Kenyan distance runner will be seeking the $2,000 first prize in the two-mile run and the $600 first prize in the mile, a double he has successfully completed nine times on the pro track circuit.

The two-mile race continues the ITA policy of adding money to add incentive. But ITA founder-president Mike O'Hara is afraid the favored Jipcho may run only fast enough to win, not to set records.

Jipcho has his reasons. "I have a big fear that if I run too fast at the start, to break a record, I put. Brian Oldfield will take his six throws — then amateur world record holder Al Feuerbach will throw in an exhibition.

To protect his amateur status, Feuerbach technically will be throwing after the ITA meet has ended. The men will use the same 16-pound iron implement, providing an opportunity to compare Oldfield's new 1½-turn throwing method against the traditional style used by Feuerbach.

Three-time Olympian Jim Ryan ran in last place, then dropped out of his last race. Ryan will try again today in the mile against a field elevated to average only by the entry of Jipcho.

Jipcho has won $4,400 this season in three meets and is 24-2 since turning pro a year ago.

Earl McCullough, former high hurdles world record holder from Poly High and USC, will step on a track for the first time since 1968. He will be a decided underdog against world record holder and Olympic titlist Rod Milburn.

Sixty-three athletes, including 27 Olympians who won 18 gold medals, will compete in 13 events today.

Thought birdie every hole: Palmer
Barney & Arnie lead golf

Combined News Services

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. — It was the Barney and Arnie show Friday at the Greater Jacksonville Open.

Barney Thompson, a lanky West Virginian shooting the best golf of his brief pro career, fired a 66 for an 11-under-par 133 to build a three-stroke lead at the midway point of the $150,000 tournament.

Thompson, a 26-year-old tour sophomore, said his three-stroke lead over Palmer didn't make him nervous.

Player and Bob Murphy are not playing.

Palmer, whose 61st and last victory was in the 1973 Hope Classic, said after Thursday's 68 that while he hadn't "been playing all that badly," that his problem had been his inability to put two or more good rounds together.

After Friday's 68, Palmer said, "Those were fair to good rounds. Now, I need two really good rounds."

"There for awhile, I felt like I was going to birdie every hole," Palmer said. "That's the feeling you've got to have."

"But there's still room for improvement. I had a couple of tee shots that weren't too good, and one bad iron. If I don't shoot worse than 68 the next two rounds, I'll be happy."

might get tired and someone else will pass me and he will win and he will set the record and he will get the money and it was me who did all the work," he says. "So instead I must make sure I will win, so I do not try to set records."

Jipcho's major challenger is expected to be Tracy Smith, former owner of the indoor three-mile record.

It figures to be a fast race, perhaps under ITA's record of 8:34 set by Jipcho last year — "maybe 8:22 or 8:24," said Jipcho.

$110,500 San Luis Rey Stakes

Astray, Tallahto collide today

Astray attempts today to capture Santa Anita's San Luis Rey Stakes for the second year in a row, a feat accomplished once before in the 23-year history of the 1½-mile grass-course race.

Last year, Astray woo with 126 pounds, the same weight he—and all other male horses— will carry this year.

The 6-year-old, who was Santa Anita's grass course champion last year, captured the long-distance event a year ago in 2 minutes, 24 2-5 seconds, one of the faster times ever recorded in the race.

This year the San Luis Rey is worth $110,500 and Astray's competition comes from Tallahto, an outstanding 5-year-old mare owned by Mrs. Howard B. Keck. Tallahto is the first of her sex to run in this 1½-mile race since Drumtop ran fourth in 1971.

No mare has won the San Luis Rey, but Tallahto is running with 121 pounds, five less than the male horses, and has already shown she can run 1½ miles. She won the Oak Tree Invitational at that distance last season.

Astray, William Hagan Perry's marathon expert, won the San Juan Capistrano last season as well as this event, but has been raced sparingly this season. He'll be trying to equal the feat of Cedar Key in taking the San Luis Rey twice in a row. Cedar Key did it in 1965-66.

Astray will be coupled in the wagering with Okavango, both trained by Charlie Whittingham.

Ga Hai, who likes dampness and won the $50,000 Santa Anita Handicap after a day of rain earlier this year, hopes for more rain in the San Luis Rey. But forecasts have been for overcast and no rain.

Tallahto has Don Pierce aboard and Astray has Jacinto Velasquez. Bill Shoemaker will be up on Tourkours Pret.

Exact Duplicate staged an impressive stretch charge, coming from last place to win the featured $15,000 Kern County Fair Purse Friday.

The 3-1 second choice in the five-horse field returned $8 for his three-length triumph, with Rue De Rivoli second and favored Somarizer third.

Jockey Joge Tejeira kept the son of 1963 Kentucky Derby winner Chateaugay at the rear of the small field during the early running, while Shoemaker on Solarizer and Octavio Aviles on Lucky Limey duelled for the lead. But Exact Duplicate took the lead at the eighth pole and was going easily at the end.

Sandy Hawley had his best since returning from a suspension by winning four races.

made two good stops, turned Danny Cater's grounder into a game-ending double play.

For the Cards, now 8-7 to Boston's 6-9 in spring standings—the game was won after Red Sox starter Mark Bomback blanked St. Louis on two hits for five innings. In the sixth, Lou Brock led off against Jim Burton with his second hit. After a balk, Ted Sizemore tripped and also scored when Cater made a diving stop on Bake McBride's grounder and threw late to the plate.

In other exhibition games, Cincinnati defeated Detroit 5-3, Oakland beat San Diego 4-2, Kansas City split its squad and turned back the Chicago White Sox 4-0 and the Yankees 8-4, Montreal shaded Texas 6-5, Atlanta decisioned Houston's B team 5-1, Philadelphia edged Pittsburgh 4-3 and Houston blanked Minnesota 3-0.

The Reds scored four runs in the sixth with the help of three hits, three walks and an error to beat the Tigers.

The score was tied 1-1 going into the sixth. Joe Morgan doubled off starter Dave Lemanczyk, Dave Revering followed with a triple, Roger Freed walked, and Dave Concepcion singled in a run. The last two runs were scored on a throwing error by reliever Tom Walker and a bases-loaded walk. The win was the ninth against five Kentucky, which faces the most difficult task, won't find matters any easier if all-America Scott May returns to the Indiana starting lineup. May, who fashioned a 16.3 scoring average before breaking his left arm early this season, is given an "excellent chance" to be in the starting quintet by Hoosier assistant coach Dave Bliss.

"I'm happy for Scott's recovery," said Kentucky coach Joe Hall, who lost an earlier game to Indiana. "I just hope it's not a complete one."

Louisville assistant coach Dana Kirk found something to be thankful for on the eve of the Cardinals' meeting with Maryland.

"When Maryland was recruiting Moses Malone, I was hoping he'd decide to play college ball, but now I'm glad he decided to go with the pros," Kirk admitted.

Twenty-year-old Montreal rookie Gary Carter smashed three hits, drove in three runs and threw out two runners from rightfield in a one-man show as the Expos outlasted the Rangers.

Carter singled home a run off Texas starter Clyde Wright in the Expos' three-run third, then unloaded a two-run homer off Wright in the fifth.

Angelo Dundee, trainer of heavyweight champion Muhammad Ali; apparently thinks challenger Chuck Wepner deserves a new nickname. Known as "The Bleeder," Dundee's allegation would make "The Cheater" a more appropriate title.

"It is the first time I ever saw a guy practice illegal punches in a gymnasium," said Dundee, who has watched some of Wepner's training sessions. "He was throwing kidney punches and rabbit punches." A rabbit punch is a blow behind the neck.

"I thought their performance was one of the greatest I've ever seen," he said.

Long road to Derby gets rocky

Associated Press

They're off and running again this weekend toward the Kentucky Derby, the showcase for 3-year-old thoroughbreds and the first stop on the Triple Crown tour.

The big race today is the $100,000 Louisiana Derby at the Fairgrounds in New Orleans. A field of 11 is expected to be tested at 1 1/4 miles, just an eighth of a mile shy of the Derby distance.

L'Enjoleur, Jean Louis Levesque's Canadian colt, is the 5-2 early favorite.

Three-year-olds Derby hopefuls also will be running, for less money, at Pimlico and Garden State Park. Derby nominees, Bombay Duck, Gallant Bob and Bold Gun are among those expected to start the $25,000, six-furlong Hirsch Jacobs Stakes at Pimlico.

Three-year-olds also will be running, along with older horses, in the $100,000-added Gulfstream Handicap. But the 1 1/4-mile Florida race lost its main attraction, Forego, the 1974 Horse of the Year.

WEATHER

High winds expected as George Chevrolet lets the air out of inflation. Heavy showers of savings for three full days.

WAR DECLARED ON INFLATION

George Chevrolet's famous General Whattabuy to lead first wave!

ON THE FRONT LINES — George Chevrolet's General Whattabuy has been chosen by the Dept. of Consumer Defense to lead the first attack wave in the War on Inflation. In a news conference today, Whattabuy said, "We're gonna mass our troops at midnight and at my signal, we'll charge down the rows! We'll slash prices, knock down high prices and discount discounts! When we're done, there won't be an inflation left in the store!"

Troops Massing For Big Full-Scale Battle!

METROPOLITAN LONG BEACH — Liberation from high prices has come to the people of the Greater Long Beach area at last! George Chevrolet has declared full-scale War on Inflation. The 3-day battle will begin on March 22, lasting until March 24! George Chevrolet's battleground will be open every day 9 A.M. 'til 10 P.M.! Bring the whole family and join in this war against inflation - you'll save as never before! Take a look at these low battlefield prices!
